Surfers undaunted by shark attack

By ROBERT MISKIMON

"WHEN YOUR number's up, it's up and there's not a damn thing you can do about it."

Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson, a 20-year veteran surfer who is married and the father of three young children, summed up the attitude of many surfers on Carmel Bay.

After the fatal attack by a great white shark last week on a Pacific Grove surfer, one might have expected to find surfers polishing their boards instead of braving the waters.

But just the opposite was true. Many experienced surfers said they considered sharks just one of the risks involved in their sport.

If anything, the grisly discovery of 25-year-old Lewis Boren's chewed-out surfboard on the beach at Asilomar, followed by his mangled body washing ashore, seems to have only heightened the sense of danger and excitement for most surfers. At least, that's what surfers on Carmel Bay said in the wake of the attack.

"Everybody has their calling card," said 22-year-old Peter Carr of Carmel, a perennial surfer who knew and had surfed with Boren, a fallen comrade. "When yours is up there's nothing you can do about it."

"If your dad gets killed in a car wreck, do you not drive the next day?" rhetorically asked Steve Lawrie, 27, a Pebble Beach surfer who also knew Boren.

Several surfers who were back in the fray just after the attack said they long ago accepted sharks as one of the risks involved in their sport. Some said they had had several brushes with the fearsome fishes.

Henry Tuomela of Seattle, who visited friends in Carmel last week, said he was circled by a great white while surfing off Asilomar in Pacific Grove about five years ago.

"He came up under my board and actually pushed it up," Tuomela said. "The water around me started to boil, and he circled a few times before leaving."

Tom Henley, 27, of Monterey said he has seen sharks on at least three occasions while surfing, but said that doesn't keep him out of the water. Henley said another surfer friend, Kirk Johnston of Salinas who was injured in a shark attack in 1974 off Point Sur, has earned the nickname "Sharkbait" because he continues to ride the waves.

The attack on Boren was the seventh in the Monterey Bay area since 1926, when record-keeping started. Two of the attacks — beside the Boren incident — were in the Pacific Grove area and two off Point Sur.

SOME SURFERS on Carmel Bay said they felt safer in these waters than they would surfing in a place like Asilomar or Pebble Beach.

"There's never been a known shark attack in a kelp area," Lawrie said. "When Lew was surfing it was an overcast day and the waters were murky. Anytime I've heard of a shark attack, it's in murky water. The theory is that with zero visibility, the shark doesn't know the depth of the water."

"Carmel Bay is probably the safest place in the world to surf because it's protected by a kelp forest and because it's not exposed to the open ocean, like Asilomar," Henley added.

"I don't believe a shark attack will keep surfers out of the water," Carr said. "It's amazing there haven't been more attacks."

Is there anything that can be done to make the waters safer for surfers?

"Yeah. We're trying to get Reagan to allocate $10 billion for shark protection in Carmel Bay," Carr grinned.

Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson is a regular surfer who has been involved with the sport for some 20 years. He believes the recent attack shows the necessity to surf with others instead of alone, as Boren apparently was at the time of the attack.

"You can't stop surfing just because there's a monster out there," Henson said. "There are a lot of reasons why people surf. People who go out into really big surf are out there for the challenge."

"Those of us who have been doing it for a while do it mostly for the sheer esthetic enjoyment and for exercise."

Henson said the recent attack — the only recorded fatal shark attack on a California surfer — is something he'd rather not even think about.

"It brings home a certain reality I just don't want to face," he said. "I've been surfing 20 years and I've never seen a shark. This kind of thing is like a freak accident. When your number's up, it's up and there's not a damn thing you can do about it."

Dr. Robert Lea, marine biologist with the State Department of Fish and Game, said there is some justification for the surfers' belief that Carmel Bay may be safer than some other waters of Monterey Bay.

"But there are no guarantees," he said. "There is a kelp bed outside the area where they surf, but sharks are just part of the native fauna of California."

There are several varieties of shark in Monterey Bay area waters, besides the great white, capable of attack upon humans, although the great white is the most frequent feeder upon humans, Lee said. These other varieties include the blue, salmon, bonita, and several species of tropical sharks.

"We want people to be concerned," Lee said. "We can't go out and post the beaches or anything like that, but it is a problem. This is a very low frequency sort of thing."

Monterey said they consider sharks just one of the risks of their sport. They gathered on Scenic Drive near Carmel beach.

STEVE LAWRIE of Pebble Beach knew the slain surfer as a personal friend.

RIDING the waves still holds a lure for local surfers, who believe Carmel Bay may be safer than other local waters in the wake of the recent shark attack. (Photos by Mike Gardner).

Cal-Am wants lawsuit dismissed

By ROBERT MISKIMON

JUDGE Richard Silver has taken under submission a motion in Monterey County Superior Court by California-American Water Co. for dismissal of a $2.8 million lawsuit by 10 Carmel Valley property owners along the Carmel River.

The landowners claim that Cal-Am over-pumped wells in the Schulte Road area and caused the water table to lower, which killed vegetation and caused erosion of their land.

Cal-Am maintained in its motion for summary judgment that it could not be held liable since it had no duty to prevent erosion of the plaintiffs' property. The water company said it observed all laws and regulations in pumping during a drought period.

The property owners and the amount of money each seeks as compensation are:

Gunnar and Eleanor Reimers, $520,000; Mary Shorey, $55,000; Zobel Investments, Inc., $320,000; Logar, Inc., $620,000; Patrick and Evelyn Parker, $320,000; Bill and Dorothy Dick, $420,000; Doris Sander-son, $370,000.

The lawsuit filed by Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson also seeks $200,000 in punitive damages to be distributed among the plaintiffs.

Cal-Am has filed a cross-complaint in which it seeks to attach the death of river vegetation to the 10 plaintiff property owners as well as to all owners of high-volume wells from Water West Corp. to Carmel Valley Manor and Rancho Canada Golf Club.

In its motion for dismissal, Cal-Am claims that if it had been required to guarantee that pumping its wells would not cause erosion it would have had a "crippling effect" on its ability to supply the water needs of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Cal-Am motion calls its pumping from Carmel Valley wells during the 1975-77 drought "socially beneficial, not morally blameworthy" and said the Carmel River

FOUR NEW WELLS have been drilled in Carmel Valley by California-American Water Co. as part of a $5 million project to boost available water supplies from the Carmel River aquifer. This well — the Pearce well — is located at the end of Prado del Sol in Carmel Valley. The pond visible in foreground is a result of test pumping and will be backfilled before the wells are operational in the spring.

property owners' petition for damages is based on "guesswork" as to how far the water table can be safely drawn down.

The water company maintains there is controversy over whether vegetation does control erosion of the riverbanks, as the plaintiffs argue in their lawsuit.

"Does the obligation in fact act to prevent erosion, given the physical characteristics and man-made alterations in the Carmel River?" the Cal-Am motion asks. "This is a subject of much controversy, with experts supporting each position."

In his response to the Cal-Am motion, plaintiff attorney Alexander Henson said "the thrust of the water company's memorandum is to avoid liability because it had the obligation to supply water to the Monterey Peninsula during the drought and because the erosion damages were unforeseeable.

"THE FIRST contention begs the question and the second contention ignores the facts. The water company's argument that it should not be liable because it had the obligation to pump its wells in order to supply water to the Monterey Peninsula begs the question of whether that pumping could be done with impunity, as suggested by Cal-Am."

Contrary to the Cal-Am assertion that it could not foresee property damage from pumping Carmel Valley wells during a drought, Henson argues that the connection between water table drawdown and riparian vegetation death was made as early as 1966 by Edwin Lee of Carmel Valley.

Instead, the water company went ahead with pumping to feed its "profit-hungry" parent corporation — American Water Works Co. — according to the Henson response.

"American Water Works Co. milked Cal-Am for 75 cents of every profit dollar," the document states. "This resulted in Cal-Am turning over to American Water Works a significant amount of money — $2.4 million — that was invested in other American Water Works subsidiaries or used to retire American Water Works debt."

"This transfer of capital was occurring notwithstanding that Kennedy Engineers had told Cal-Am that its transmission mains were at capacity and needed to be enlarged or an alternative supply of water developed."

Cal-Am should have either operated its wells so as not to cause harm to nearby riparian vegetation or study the problem and then follow the results of the study, Henson maintains.

Pebble Beach may appeal water project decision

THE PEBBLE BEACH Sanitary District will grudgingly comply with a court decision that could cost it $80,000.

The P.B. sanitary district should pay one-third of the cost of the Carmel Sanitary District Water Reclamation Project "immediately and conditionally" and then file an appeal.

PBSD Board President Richard Lord said Dec. 24 that he would present that recommendation to his board when it meets Jan. 15.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver, on Dec. 11 stated in a notice of intended decision, that the PBSD would benefit from the water reclamation project and therefore, is liable for one-third of its costs.

"In accordance with their contract, Pebble Beach must still share in the expense of that project if it benefits them . . . without these improvements, Carmel and Pebble Beach will be required to shut down the discharge of treatment of sewage. By making these improvements, Carmel facilitates the continued treatment of Pebble Beach sewage and, consistent with the intent of the contract, does provide a benefit to Pebble Beach," Silver wrote.

According to Carmel Sanitary District Manager Michael Zambory, once the project is completed and federal and state reimbursements are allocated, the Pebble Beach share would amount to approximately $80,000.

The $13.7 million project was undertaken to comply with a state mandate to stop the discharge of effluent into Carmel Bay from May until October. The bay has been designated an Area of Special Biological Significance.

Zambory said nearly $800,000 of the $1.3 million design phase of the project has been spent. State and federal grants will cover 87.5 percent of the project cost.

The reclamation project would supply water for six Pebble Beach golf courses and two proposed courses. Those courses are Pebble Beach, Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula Country Club "Dunes," MPCC "Shore," Spyglass and the Peter Hay three-par course. The proposed courses are Spanish Bay and Hilltop.

Lord said he has been advised by PBSD Counsel Robert Booth Jr. of San Mateo to "sit tight until both attorneys for both sides can sit down and straighten things out. It's still confusing."

Reached by telephone in San Mateo Dec. 23, Booth said both attorneys will probably meet with Judge Silver sometime in January.

During the meeting, Silver will either choose to write "findings of law," or have the two attorneys prepare them, Booth said.

Once the findings of law have been prepared, and a final decision announced, either side can appeal the case.

Also in the decision, Silva reaffirmed his earlier ruling stating that Pebble Beach would not have to pay several added project costs recently billed by Carmel. Pebble Beach also does not have to pay retirement benefits for two employees which were granted prior to PBSD participation in the project.

IN A RELATED DEVELOPMENT, a State Water Resources Control Board official said Dec. 21 that a public hearing may be held to review the CSD Water Reclamation Project at the request of the Pebble Beach board.

Public Affairs Officer Evan Nossoff of the Water Resources Control Board said "we are considering the request (but) we have not

WILL IT EVER GET THIS FAR? Once completed, the Carmel Sanitary District Water Reclamation Project would supply water for the world-famous 18th green at Pebble Beach Golf Course, and several other Pebble Beach courses. The question remains, however, whether the project will be completed. Pebble Beach Sanitary District President Richard Lord said that he would recommend an appeal of the notice of intended decision requiring the PBSD to pay one-third of the costs of the project. The state may also hold another public hearing to review the project.

Del Monte Forest LCP hearing Tues Timesharing ban before city council

CRITICS of the Del Monte Forest Local Coastal Program — including the Carmel City Council — will get another chance to voice their concerns Jan. 5.

That's when the Board of Supervisors has scheduled a continued public hearing at 2:30 p.m. in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Some of the aspects of the land use program which concern the Carmel City Council, as well as the 450 Pebble Beach families represented by the Forest Committee, are traffic, noise, water, and esthetic pollution.

In a Nov. 20 letter to the Board of Super-

CVPOA membership meeting is Jan. 6

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association will hold its annual membership meeting at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 6 at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

New officers and directors will be installed for 1982, and Monterey County Planning Director Ed De Mars will discuss the status of the Carmel Valley Master Plan and its environmental impact report.

Gwen Buchholz, engineer with Montgomery Engineers of San Francisco, will discuss her recent study of groundwater quality in Carmel Valley for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and Monterey County.

The meeting is open to the public.

visors, the Carmel City Council called the Del Monte Forest LCP "unacceptable" and asked that it not be approved in its present form.

Mrs. Janice O'Brien, chairwoman of the Forest Committee, told supervisors in a Nov. 23 public hearing the document is "unacceptable on the following counts: overall density, lack of contiguous open space, and access."

The LCP would permit an increase of 143 housing units over the original version of the plan submitted to the county planning commission by the Pebble Beach Corp., Mrs. O'Brien said. Total number of additional residential units contemplated in the LCP is 1,496, plus a 270-room hotel.

The Pebble Beach Corp. presented a plan in 1977 which envisioned a buildout of 4,508 residential units, but the planning commission's version of the LCP would have reduced that total by 400 units.

The planning commission draft LCP was turned over to the Board of Supervisors for completion last spring after deliberations bogged down over development densities in the forest. Supervisors William Peters and Michal Moore were then assigned the task of completion of the LCP.

Both supervisors came under fire in November for the increased development densities in the plan.

If the draft LCP is approved by supervisors Jan. 5, it will then be sent to the Coastal Commission for certification. Once certified, it will become a part of the county general plan and regulation of coastal land uses in Pebble Beach, in accord with the Coastal Act, will revert to Monterey County.

THE CARMEL City Council will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 5 on a proposed ordinance to ban timesharing in Carmel.

The measure was recommended for adoption Dec. 16 by the planning commission, after the land use committee studied various measures to regulate timesharing uses.

Timesharing is prohibited until May of 1982 under a moratorium passed by the council. Timesharing is part ownership of a condominium or apartment for a certain time — usually one or two weeks a year.

The council will also consider adoption of a resolution to authorize undergrounding of utilities in three areas in the central commercial district.

They are a portion of the alley behind Carmel Plaza, both sides of Mission between 5th and 6th, and a portion of Dolores near the post office.

About 75 percent of the area in the central commercial utilities district already has underground utilities as the result of a 20-year plan, said City Administrator Doug Peterson.

Costs of the undergrounding are paid by the utilities through a condition of franchise agreements with the city of Carmel, he said.

The council meeting is open to the public.

Supervisors may order Canada Segunda EIR

MONTEREY COUNTY supervisors will decide Jan. 5 whether to order an environmental impact report for the proposed 562-acre Canada Segunda development in lower Carmel Valley.

The county planning commission recommended preparation of an EIR at its Dec. 16 meeting, but final authority to order preparation of the document rests with the Board of Supervisors.

Carmel Valley realtor "Skip" Marquard and owner Howard Morgens plan to sell 173 residential parcels on the property, if the project is approved. Some 348 acres of the 900-acre parcel are to be dedicated to Jacks Peak Park as open space.

If the board orders preparation of the EIR as expected, then the county planning department will solicit comments from other governmental agencies on what areas they would like studied, said environmental planner Lynne Mounday.

The next step is solicitation of bids from several environmental consultants and selection of a firm. Completion of the EIR is not anticipated before June, Mounday said.

Appeal recommended

decided yet."

The PBSD board officially made the request last April, but the state did not reply publicly until last week.

Asked about the delay, Nossoff said: "Some issues like this take a while."

Zambory said he did not think another hearing was justified.

"Our project has had public hearing coming out of our ears," he said. "We feel our project has gone through all of the hearings necessary."

Zambory said another hearing "would give every gadfly and rabble-rouser a chance to stir up the pot. The hearing would do nothing but stir up emotions. If we could see something constructive, we wouldn't be all that dead set against it."

According to Zambory, the CSD board has a "mandate" from the people to go ahead with the reclamation project. He said those selected to the board in the previous two elections had voiced support of the project during their campaign.

HORDES of tourists may overwhelm Carmel, a possibility suggested by this picture taken during the Highland Games in August, unless a balance is struck in the general plan between residential and commercial uses. Controversy flared during 1981 over the revision of the Carmel general plan — both among members of the General Plan Advisory Committee and the City Council. As 1982 approached, the city lurched toward finding that business-residential balance.

1981: The year in review

While the city of Carmel was preoccupied with preserving the residential character of the Village, the rest of the Carmel area was deeply concerned with questions of water supply and the health of the Carmel River. Also in the news was the Carmel Valley Master Plan, school cutbacks, traffic and the constant pressure for additional development. It is all summarized chronologically as it appeared in the pages of the Carmel Pine Cone and Carmel Valley Outlook

JANUARY

The New Year opened with prominent Carmelites resolving:

- To keep Carmel as a low-crime area . . . to maintain the open-door policy for the Carmel Police Department (Captain Bob Fischer).
- To continue her campaign for additional space for the library (Head Librarian Jo Childers).
- To take things as they come . . . do the best he can . . . and concentrate on getting action on the parking situation and on restrooms at Devendorf Park (Mayor Barney Laiolo).

- Not to participate in a depression (real estate agent Herma Smith Curtis).

Carmel became an art colony without an art supply store when the Studio Art Supply, founded by the late Fred Klepich, closed its doors. Soon, however, Spencer's stationery store jumped into the breach, announcing that it would carry art supplies in addition to its usual merchandise.

Sheriff Bud Cook reported that his department confiscated almost 26,000 pounds of growing marijuana in 64 raids during the 1980 marijuana eradication project. Cook said that Monterey County ranks in the top two or three counties in California in number of plants seized and total pounds of growing marijuana confiscated.

Local conservationists, in particular, mourned the death of Dr. Betty Davis, a distinguished scientist noted for giving expert testimony in a number of vital conservation issues.

A special issue of the Pine Cone featuring working people revealed:

- Restaurants, retail stores and hotels are the leading employers in Carmel.
- Few workers in Carmel and Carmel Valley have sought security in numbers by joining unions.
- At least one family, instead of running to Carmel was running from this area and lifestyle to one where life moves at an even slower pace — a log cabin at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

- Classified employees of the school

After more than six months of negotiations the Carmel Unified School District and its classified employees agreed to a contract calling for an 8 percent pay increase across the board. A 0.6 percent increase in fringe benefits was also included for the 1980-81 school year.

Elizabeth Bell, a former school board member, was appointed to an interim seat on the Board of Education of the school district. The term ends in November.

***

The Regional Coastal Commission postponed action on the Carmel Local Coastal Program until policy conflicts between the commission staff and city on development of a beachfront parcel and low-income housing could be ironed out.

***

Monterey County agreed to fund an $18,000 flood control study as part of its overall effort to map and contain the floodplain of the lower Carmel River.

***

William Peters, sworn in as a Monterey County supervisor early in January, insisted that he had no reason to resign in the wake of growing revelations of possible wrongdoing in his financial disclosures.

***

The City Council and the library board agreed to continue negotiations with Pine Inn owner Max McKee for an underground parking lot in conjunction with the proposed library annex. Library board president Patricia Faul told the council that the library could not afford to finance the parking project itself.

***

Moments after their release, the 52 American hostages were being honored by the appearance of yellow ribbons in many strategic spots throughout the city.

***

California-American Water Co. cleared the final hurdle toward drilling four new wells in Carmel Valley when a final agreement for sharing the cost and responsibility for protecting vegetation was approved by the board of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

The Carmel Sanitary District was less fortunate: its $13.7 million wastewater reclamation project was dealt a severe blow by the Regional Coastal Commission. The commission found fault with major design aspects of the project, leaving district officials stunned by the group's "negativism."

However, the commission finally did give approval for a permit, clouded somewhat by the inclusion of 11 major conditions. One was a compromise — the sanitary district would be allowed to locate a flow equalization basin on land to be acquired from the state Parks and Recreation Department.

***

The county board of Supervisors decided to avoid an "urban-type" intersection at Robinson Canyon and Carmel Valley roads by backing extension of Center Street and its transformation into a major thoroughfare. The decision brought immediate cries of protest and plans to fight it through legal or formal action.

Florence Sharon Brown, matriarch of an old Carmel family, died at the age of 101; local survivors recalled her move to Carmel in 1919 and their own early associations with the area.

Mary Ann Matthews of Carmel Valley landed the hottest and toughest job of her long career as a conservationist: a seat on the Central Coast Regional Commission.

***

Talk of the possible necessity of closing some Carmel schools rose to the surface during a special planning session of the Board of Education. A trio of factors was involved: the continuing slide in enrollment, declining state funding and rising operational costs.

At the same time, the district authorized Superintendent William Rand to contract

Monterey County agriculturists worried about the "very likely" prospect of an invasion by the Mediterranean fruit fly from neighboring counties. Residents were warned not to take fruits or vegetables into or out of affected areas.

The library board announced that it would proceed with plans to hire an architect for the proposed annex, continuing negotiations with the city of Carmel for joint construction of the annex and a parking garage.

A coordinator for the Valley Youth Project reported that it is going strong: in its fourth month there is a range of recreational classes, a plan for aiding problem youth and support from a key official — county Juvenile Court Judge D. Richard Barelli.

Plans for a bathroom and bus stop at Davendorf Park were approved by the City Council; city staff was to interview architectural firms and make recommendations to the council at its March meeting.

The Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) reported that Carmel will need 218 more housing units by 1985.

The controversial illustrated map of Carmel being painted on a board near Nielsen's Market was approved by the Design Review Committee of the Carmel Planning Commission and then, finally, by the commission itself.

A budget projection for the Carmel Unified School District forecast a major loss in state funding, a large cutback of teaching staff and another tight year for programs and curriculum. A nine percent drop in enrollment was predicted.

The Regional Coastal Commission approved Carmel's Local Coastal Program with one significant exception: the commission threw out the portion related to development of the Patterson property at Ocean and San Antonio.

cial and residential burglaries. Total arrests were up 22 percent over 1979. Other police department news: Carmel had its first female administrative, supervisory appointment — Joyce Farris as desk sergeant.

Fire Chief Robert Updike reported that fires caused an estimated $130,000 loss in Carmel during 1980. The department received 524 fire calls during the year and answered 859 ambulance calls.

Various officials bemoaned the possibly severe effect of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts on wastewater reclamation and schools in the Carmel area, also on long-term plans for road improvements and bridge repairs in Carmel Valley. The impact on the city itself would be minimal, according to Mayor Laiolo.

cleared, these buildings were familiar to many Carmelites. Many citizens questioned whether the $400,000 could be better spent in direct services to people.

open for a possible appeal on the Regional Coastal Commission's modifications of beach dedication and setbacks on the Patterson property.

California-American Water Co. filed a cross-complaint in the legal battle to lay blame for erosion along the Carmel River, targeting the original property owners and owners of other high-volume wells.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors settled one highly controversial issue: they reversed their position on the proposed Center Street extension in Carmel Valley and voted for an underpass at Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads.

On-again, off-again was the word for the City Council's approach to a decision about purchase of the Piccadilly Nursery site. On March 9, the council voted to hold a special city election in June to again poll voters on keeping the property as open space, or selling it. On March 16, the council reversed itself and decided to keep the property, without submitting the question to a vote.

Vacillation was also the word in regard to toilets for tourists. In February, the council made plans for construction of public restrooms in Davendorf Park. This month — by unanimous vote — they reacted to mounting public pressure and dropped those plans.

Granite Rock Co. protested to the county Board of Supervisors that policies in the draft Big Sur Local Coastal Program would prevent its mining plan on Pico Blanco mountain. Especially at issue were the mountain's deposits of high-grade limestone.

Protests on another issue were gaining ground: SOS (Save Our Shores), a coordinating agency against the opening of offshore oil and gas exploration, was circulating petitions and declared March 21 as Operation Save Our Shores Day.

An unprecedented number of steelhead fishermen descended on the Carmel River, prompting landowners to complain of widespread trespassing violations. At issue: clouded property rights and the possibility that access to the river may take precedence over private property rights.

Many community organizations as well as individuals had reason to mourn the passing of Col. St. Elmo P. "Step" Tyner. Among his effective contributions: he was the main force behind the fire district for Carmel's unincorporated area (CSA 43); he organized efforts to have underground utilities installed in Carmel Knolls. His achievements while on active military duty were outstanding.

Selection of Marsha F. Kading as Carmel High School's next principal was a first for the school — its first woman principal — and a first for Ms. Kading — her first principalship after 16 years as a teacher and administrator. Ms. Kading was described by school board members as "very firm on discipline," "a stimulus to her staff," and "an innovator and finisher."

Jo Childers, head librarian at Harrison Memorial Library for five years, resigned effective May 1. No reason was given.

The library board selected an architectural firm — Hall, Goodhue, Haisley and Barker of Monterey — for its proposed $1 million annex.

***
The California State Board of Equalization reported that retail sales activity in Carmel increased 12 percent in the past 12 months.

***
The Carmel Sanitary District's wastewater reclamation project was in a race against time and the federal budget ax. The district's announced strategy was to complete the design of new ports on the outfall line in Carmel Bay in time to apply for a construction grant before federal cuts are approved.

Acting library director Peg Richter was named director of Harrison Memorial Library, winning the post over 70 applicants.

A fast-acting City Council overrode its mayor and voted 4-1 to begin immediate negotiations to purchase an additional lot for the proposed library annex. Mayor Laiolo questioned the speed with which the action was taken and also the cost — $200,000. The purchase was finally consummated at a total amount of $210,000, the additional money being for "miscellaneous costs."

***
A new dimension was added to environmental impact reports on proposed developments in Carmel Valley by the Monterey County Planning Department: impacts are to be assessed in conjunction with already-approved projects and also in combination with all proposed and approved projects in the Valley.

The new National Bank of Carmel, in its first report to the public, cited total deposits of $5,450,000, comparing favorably with longer-established local financial institutions. The bank's total net worth, after five months in operation, was $3,246,000.

EMBATTLED Fifth District Monterey County Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley won twice in court on charges brought by Dist. Atty. William Curtis. Peters was cleared of 14 charges of official misconduct as a planning commissioner in a civil suit in October. And 10 grand jury criminal charges were dismissed in November by Superior Court Judge Nat Agliano. The Board of Supervisors is to consider Peters' request to have the county reimburse his $25,000 legal costs on Jan. 4.

The Carmel Sanitary District petitioned the Local Agency Formation Commission for a merger with the Pebble Beach district. The latter's board of directors promptly and unanimously voted against it.

The conflict between the mayor and the City Council erupted again; this time over an appointment to the state Coastal Commission. The council accused the mayor of ignoring their vote to support Robert Garcia for the post and instead, endorsing Grace McCarthy when she was supported at a mayor's meeting he attended. Mayor Laiolo countered by accusing three council members of holding a secret meeting in violation of the Brown Act.

***
The draft Environmental Impact Report for the Carmel Valley Master Plan drew attacks by a number of organizations and individuals. Concerns focused on water supply, groundwater contamination, noise levels, traffic, law enforcement, air pollution, fire protection and overall development levels. Public hearings were scheduled for September.

***
Revived interest in train service from the Monterey Peninsula to San Francisco surfaced. Sparked by the longtime efforts of Carmel Valley's Ed Haber, an informational meeting was scheduled. Also supporting the concept was a just-completed feasibility study by the State Department of Transportation.

***
Carmel property owners won the first round in court to get the city's transient rental ordinance declared unconstitutional: an order for a preliminary injunction was issued, temporarily keeping the city from enforcing the ordinance. City Attorney George Brehmer said he would draft a new ordinance eliminating the criticism made by the court.

***
The deaths of two Peninsula residents were especially mourned. Allen Griffin ("The Colonel"), 87 years old, was the founder of the Monterey Peninsula Herald and dedicated himself to it for nearly half a century. He was also co-publisher of the Pine Cone in the late 1920s and early 1930s. He was described as "a man who never backed away from a fight, no matter how imposing the adversary."

Warren William ("Tor") Spindler died at age 56, the victim of a tragic automobile accident. Spindler had established a vocational program in police science at MPC and at the time of his death was chairman of the administration of justice department. He was also a former assistant football coach at MPC and he founded the football program at Robert Lewis Stevenson School. Local police officers paid special tribute to Spindler for his willingness to listen to and encourage those wanting a career in law enforcement.

***
Prince Charles and Lady Di's wedding did not pass unnoticed or unobserved in Carmel. The Sticky Wicket, English tearoom, was swamped with orders for tankards, plates and other memorabilia. In Pebble Beach, Carmel resident Ann Patrick, a former Londoner, decorated her flower ship with Union Jacks and appropriate floral arrangements. She found her customers' response "fervent."

APRIL

Editor and Publisher Al Eisner announced the merger of the Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Valley Outlook, now to be mailed free to every mailing address in a wide area.

***
Members of the Citizens Advisory Committee for the Carmel area Local Coastal Program expressed satisfaction with the document approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission. Policies affecting the Odello and Fish properties, sewage treatment and beach parking were to go next to the county Board of Supervisors.

***
Meanwhile, the state Coastal Commission unanimously upheld the regional commission's decision on the land-use portion of the Carmel Local Coastal Program, despite opposition from the city administrator and the city attorney. At issue: maintenance of the

The county Planning Commission approved a rezoning plan that included 33 units of employee housing in connection with the Carmel Valley Ranch development. Nearby residents immediately criticized the plan because of possible policing, traffic and sewage problems.

The City Council, unanimous for once, enacted an "urgency" ordinance creating a four-month moratorium on subdividing retail space into smaller shops. The ordinance went into effect immediately and gave city officials until August 5 to come up with a permanent, detailed proposal.

Carmel Woods residents got the good news that water main replacements over a four-year period will ensure adequate pressure in their hydrants. Cal-Am officials said that the cost of the work would have to be budgeted each year but that every effort would be made to carry through the project.

Unsafe police cars, all too often in the shop for repairs instead of on Carmel's streets, were the subject of a plea to the City Council by Police Chief Bill Ellis. Some levity, and a variety of opinions, greeted his request for replacements. Action was deferred in favor of research on the effectiveness of other models and of smaller cars.

★ ★ ★
Also deferred (tabled) was Mayor Laiolos's proposal to cut the city hostelry tax by 2 percent. City Administrator Doug Peterson said the economic picture of the city required maintenance of the tax at its present 8 percent level.

Community Hospital announced a new service for elderly and disabled residents: Lifeline. All subscribers (at $10 per month) would have to do to summon help would be to press a small, wireless "help button" that can be worn or carried.

★ ★ ★
One of 1,400 selected out of 12,000 applicants! That's the honor that came to Rico de Rouen, a Carmel High School senior who will be entering West Point with the Class of 1985.

A new code of conduct for Carmel Middle School drew criticism from parents who said it is too harsh and inflexible.

CARMEL VALLEY Ranch received county approval Nov. 3 for construction of 91 more units of housing, after it dropped plans to construct 33 units of employee housing, including 17 low-income units. Developer Landmark Lands of Oklahoma already had received approval for 140 townhouses, a tennis club, golf course (above) and clubhouse.

Monterey County's final hearings on the Big Sur Local Coastal Program closed amid last-minute maneuvering by lawyers, cries of betrayal from environmentalists and mixed opinions on the fate of Big Sur. After a flurry of major changes, the supervisors' 4-1 vote sent the document on to the coastal commission.

★ ★ ★
Students from Carmel schools took top honors in the 13th annual Monterey County Mathletic Championship.

The Carmel City Council approved unanimously — on first reading — an ordinance requiring the design review process for all buildings exceeding 18 feet in height or two stories high.

★ ★ ★
The council also agreed that residents could take part in its public budget deliberations, which were to begin in May.

★ ★ ★
Other actions by the city council: approved, unanimously, the immediate demolition of buildings on the Piccadilly Nursery site; decided not to raise the annual $2 fee for resident parking stickers.

Dorothy James, affiliated with the American Red Cross since 1943 and executive secretary of the Carmel Chapter for 17 years, died at the age of 75.

Monterey County flood control officials and residents along the Carmel River breathed sighs of relief as the rainy season closed without a major flood disaster. However, concern remained about long-term improvements in the situation; the lack of funds appeared to be a major obstacle.

★ ★ ★
The fortunes of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars took a decided turn for the better with a court-supervised agreement including payment of all back rent and taxes, an extension of the current lease and an option to purchase the property.

★ ★ ★
Grant requests totaling $120,000 were submitted to the city of Carmel by 18 community service and 14 cultural organizations. The Cultural Commission was to set up a schedule for evaluation of the requests.

The county Board of Supervisors cleared obstacles to the Carmel Valley Ranch development and Rancho Canada Lodge. They also finalized major policies in the Carmel area LCP.

★ ★ ★
Lester Rowntree, a famous naturalist and pioneer environmentalist who spent 53 years of 100 years living in Carmel Highlands, was honored through dedication of the Lester Rowntree Memorial Arboretum at Mission Trail Park.

A comparison of retail sales statistics for the decade showed that Carmel's average rate of growth had been only slightly greater than that in the state and in Monterey County.

★ ★ ★
Carmel's ordinance rental rentals of 30 days or less went into effect; City Administrator Doug Peterson said enforcement would begin immediately.

The county supervisors voted to rezone Carmel Valley Ranch development's 508 acres to allow further subdivision. The even more significant issue of the use permit and a tentative map for the second residential phase was yet to come.

The first meeting of the city's revived Traffic Committee took place; the first issue discussed was hazards at the intersection of Santa Fe and Third. The city engineer was asked to prepare detailed plans for alternative solutions.

MAY

A special report in the Pine Cone covered the "unprecedented crisis" being faced by the Carmel Unified School District. Declining enrollment and budget problems caused by the onset of Proposition 13 and the Serrano-Onset decision were blamed; the outlook was for drastic cutbacks and the closing of at least one school.

An eleventh-hour attempt by Jack Patterson to involve Carmel in pursuing litigation on behalf of his beachfront property failed; however, the City Council did agree to hold another public hearing on the matter. A motion to adopt the California Coastal Commission LCP on Carmel, except for the Patterson and Del Mar properties, was then approved.

1981: The year in review

In order to stay within the library's budget, the Harrison Memorial Library board accepted acting director Peg Richter's recommendations that no more books be ordered during the current fiscal year.

Carmel Valley is threatened with flood danger and fire hazards, and the quality of the water in the Carmel River aquifer is in danger. Those were the conclusions drawn in a series of reports prepared by Monterey County as part of its General Plan revision.

Figures released by Cal-Am showed that the city of Carmel could anticipate water problems . . . consumption increased at a faster rate than anticipated and could exhaust the city's entire allocation of water within two years instead of the hoped-for 20 years. The city administrator and a planning commissioner agreed that careful planning would be necessary; recommendations included appointment of an advisory committee on water conservation, additional analysis by city staff and postponement of any proposed moratorium.

Ground was broken and construction officially started on the Crossroads, a new $7.5 million shopping center at the junction of Highway 1 and Rio Road.

The Monterey County Grand Jury accused Supervisor William Peters of 10 counts of misconduct, including conflict of interest and perjury charges. Peters declared himself innocent and characterized the investigation as part of a vendetta against him by political opponents.

In the face of requests from 19 cultural organizations for a total of $74,030 in grants, the City Council set a firm $49,500 figure as its maximum for such grants in the 1981-82 budget year.

Parents attending a series of meetings to ponder alternatives in a report on school facilities gave special attention to the question: Can Carmel Unified School District have both neighborhood schools and educational excellence in the 1980s despite declining enrollment and funding reductions? One parent said, "The neighborhood school is the last, final step where anything has to be cut."

Seven consulting firms vying for the job of revising Carmel's General Plan learned that the task will require walking a tightrope between the interests of residents and business. Other problems: Obtaining maximum citizen participation in the plan; defining and dealing with "locally useful businesses."

The Citizens Advisory Committee to the Local Coastal Plan for the Carmel unincorporated area protested major changes made in the plan by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. At issue: a larger hotel on the Odello property, and a sports center; also allowances for hotel and commercial development on the Hudson-Riley ranch that were double those recommended by the committee.

Local water officials looked askance at the Army Corps of Engineers' proposal for a big new dam on the Carmel River, calling the $212 million pricetag "damned expensive." Predictions were that local and state taxpayers would not go along with it.

Stepping down after four years on the Planning Commission, Dr. Don Davidson criticized the Old Carmel group as ultraconservative and "a joke"; he stated that he would like to have a part in developing the city's new General Plan and that "to really be pro-resident, we have to be pro-business too, because the town cannot exist without the business community."

The Cultural Commission hammered out grants to 13 cultural organizations, noting with some concern that nearly one-third of the total $49,500 went to the Bach Festival and another one-third to other music groups.

The proposed Holt subdivision in mid-Carmel Valley would have unavoidable adverse impacts on visual characteristics, traffic flows, air quality and native vegetation in the Valley, according to the draft Environmental Impact Report for the 214-lot project.

Top-level administrators are leaving the Carmel Unified School District for financial, career and personal reasons according to the Pine Cone's interviews with three administrators whose decisions to leave "rocked the district's leadership ranks." The chairman of the school board acknowledged that economic problems in the district were a factor but insisted that each of the principals left to seek "other avenues of employment" for different reasons.

Among the many awards and prizes given to local students, the one given to Carmel High School senior Jim Rogers was outstanding. Rogers was first prize winner in the 25th annual National Maritime Poster Contest. His prize was $500 and a trip to Washington, D.C.

JUNE

A proposed Carmel River floodplain ordinance resulted in "howls of protest" by property owners, who objected chiefly to the ordinance's 200-foot setback requirement. However, Carmel River Watch (CREW) went on record in support of the ordinance, albeit with some reservations.

Businessman and landowner Jack Patterson deeded 4,592 sq. ft. of beachfront land to the city of Carmel, unconditionally. The gift represented more than 50 percent of the area proposed by regional and state coastal commissions to be dedicated to public recreational and open space use; it was said that by this deed — promptly accepted by the City Council — Patterson hoped to end his 10-year battle to build four houses on his remaining property.

Development of the Piccadilly Nursery site on Dolores into a public park could cost as much as $75,000. That was City Administrator Doug Peterson's answer to inquiries about the controversial plan.

The city of Carmel issued a "stop work" order to block Paradise Mall owner Paul Laub from dividing the western section of his store and ended with a lawsuit on its hands. Laub received a temporary order to quash the city's action pending a hearing. The next step was a compromise plan for limiting the number of separate shops on that side of the building. However, Laub said he would pursue his lawsuit.

The city's Planning Commission was considering a moratorium on increases in commercial activity or changes in existing businesses while Carmel's General Plan is being revised. The proposal emerged at a meeting of the commission's Land Use Committee; it would have to go to the full commission and then to the City Council for approval before implementation.

A just completed flood hazard study proposed six alternatives for the lower Carmel River, including construction of six-foot-high concrete culverts to channel flood waters under Highway 1. An improved levee, a bypass channel in the middle of the riverbed and bridge improvements were among the other alternatives.

Voters in the Carmel Highlands Fire District and in County Service Area 43 rejected user fees; residents "may have to pass the hat and man the hose" to keep fire services going. Residents in the Highlands district immediately launched a fundraising campaign to maintain a full staff in their fire station, with a goal of at least $35,000.

The Carmel City Council, expressing "reluctant unanimity," approved Mayor Barney Laiolo's nominations of Pauline Taylor and Eugene Cava to the planning commission.

A survey about the sex education program in the Carmel Unified School District revealed strong support by students, parents and teachers. The only disappointment for district officials was that so few parents of students who had taken the course returned the evaluation surveys — parents of 243 students were contacted; only 26 replied.

The county Board of Supervisors adopted an amendment to the zoning ordinance that would open the way for approval of mobile homes in Carmel Valley. A local representative of the Carpenters' Union stated that this could further depress an already sluggish building trades economy.

The Monterey County Planning Commission approved a use permit for construction of the next 113 units at Carmel Valley Ranch, with a significant "but" — only half the requested units could be built if the developer does not complete improvement of the intersection at Robinson Canyon and Carmel Valley roads.

Fifth District Supervisor William Peters announced that he might take the county to court for reimbursement of his land expenses in connection with charges against him of misconduct in public office.

Basement-level excavation that caused the loss of two large pine trees at Mission and Fifth led to concerns about better planning on construction projects. City Forester Greg D'Amborsio urged that the Forestry Commission be consulted before the planning commission gives design approval when trees would be affected.

More than 8,000 young steelhead fish were collected by the Carmel River Steelhead Association and transported from the drying river to the Los Padres reservoir, upstream.

The Carmel Sanitary District mounted an intensive search for an authentic American Indian to watch over archaeological excavations in connection with its water reclamation project and sewer interceptor line running from Carmel to Pacific Grove.

JULY

Big Sur residents stated their critical concerns to the regional Coastal Commission: protection of the viewshed, prohibition of strip mining at Pico Blanco and compensation to property owners. The regional commission went out of business July 1; taking over, the state commission was expected to take a hard look at cumulative housing densities in both the Carmel area and Big Sur Local Coastal Plans.

The death of teenager Denise Rosburg — whether accident or suicide — triggered questions about the possibility of "a deeper malaise, a growing sense of desperation among young people about the world and their future." Denise's parents said they would continue their involvement with Parents Who Care, local parent action group, and urged young people to communicate their needs.

The Carmel Planning Commission recommended unanimously that the City Council impose a four-month moratorium on intensification of business uses in the commercial district while the General Plan is being revised.

Developers of the proposed 175-unit Rancho Canada Lodge planned a joint appeal with Monterey County on an action last week that voided the use permit for the project. "Errors of law" were cited as the reason for the appeal.

Foreign students looking back on their year at Carmel High School said that the schools here are much easier than they are in Finland and quite different than those in Australia (much stricter in Australia). "I like the extra freedom but I don't like the lack of respect that some of the students show to their teachers here," one student reported.

***

The City Council whacked $180,000 off its $4.3 million budget for fiscal 1981-82, but then added nearly $100,000 to finance library operations, hire an additional patrolman primarily for Scenic Road problems and fund recreation, Forest Theater improvements and the Scenic beach walkway.

***

City officials' fear of "litter, liquor, lunacy" for the Fourth of July were not unfounded. Despite a request by City Administrator Doug Peterson for curtailment of the usual beach activities, it was fireworks as usual. The crowd was estimated at 10,000 — the largest ever — and considerable damage was done at the beach and to neighboring homes. The city's action, if any, was postponed until the heat of the battle cleared and a staff report and assessment would be available.

***

A district advisory committee on school facilities recommended closing of either Carmel Middle School or Carmel High School and the phasing out of one or two elementary schools in 1982-83. Trustees took no action, awaiting another report on the economics involved.

AUGUST

The Carmel Forestry Commission asked the City Council to ban fireworks on the beach "to protect the vegetation and aesthetic environment." The commission also urged the council to take other measures to protect the beach on the Fourth of July.

***

More interested in getting its books back than in collecting fines, the Harrison Memorial Library voted to allow the last week of every month to be "Amnesty Week" — overdue books may be returned without fines or questions.

***

Carmel River Watch, a citizen group spearheading efforts to clear silt and debris from the Carmel River bed, said that the work will not be completed before the onslaught of winter rains. The group put the blame squarely on the Operating Engineers Union. They said that the union is protesting the work being done by the Army, which requires project approval by all affected community organizations.

***

According to a geological study conducted for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, reestablishment of healthy riparian vegetation along the Carmel River may be the key to the control of riverbank erosion. The study recommended that either the water management district or individual Carmel Valley property owners should start a program of replanting.

***

The Carmel Planning Commission decided it needed more time for study of a proposed ordinance governing time-sharing. The complicated matter was referred to its land-use committee for an in-depth study.

***

The City Council acted to lessen the impact of its recent marathon meetings by eliminating back-to-back weekly meetings and moving the meeting day from Monday to Tuesday.

***

The city of Carmel won a round in its fight with Paradise store owner Paul Laub over the subdivision of his store's space: Superior Court Judge Paik denied a motion by Laub's lawyer to set aside an earlier stipulation that had resulted in a temporary compromise. The lawyer said Laub still plans to have a trial on the merits of the case as soon as possible.

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District won a victory in its battle for a trail network along the Carmel River. County supervisors granted a district appeal on a ruling that did not include the trail easement they wanted on property along the river; district officials saw that move as evidence of the supervisors' commitment to implement trails as shown in the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

***

The city's purchase of a third lot on Lincoln was finalized in action by the City Council, at a price of $200,000. The board of trustees of the Harrison Memorial Library hastened to say that it did not ask the city to buy that lot for library purposes. It is intended for use as an underground parking facility "in connection with the library annex."

***

Plans for development of The Piccadilly park began with two community workshops. Landscape architect Gordon Andrews conducted the brainstorming sessions, inviting even "far-fetched" ideas. The City Council took action, adopting the name "The Piccadilly" and voting against having any restrooms in the park.

***

Developers of the 22-unit Village Green condominiums in Carmel Valley filed for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Code. A spokesman said the project was the victim of high home mortgage rates and general economic distress.

***

The county Board of Supervisors approved a declaration of negative environmental impact for construction of a major intersection at Robinson Canyon and Carmel Valley roads. Construction could start as early as January, unless opponents find another means of blocking it.

***

Veteran actor and singer Bruce Tuthill announced that dinner theater will replace rock-and-roll at the Mission Ranch; he will direct the programs under a six-month contract.

***

The Carmel Unified School District Board of Education voted to eliminate bus fees and fees for after-school sports in the coming year; at the same time, lunch prices were increased.

SEPTEMBER

Plans for The Piccadilly park moved ahead: the Forestry Commission recommended that it be for daytime use only and city officials were directed to meet with Mary Lou Linhart, owner of property adjacent to the park, concerning the possible use of her property as part of an overall landscape design.

***

Funding cutbacks in the Monterey Peninsula Youth Project spelled drastic curtailment of youth counseling services in Carmel schools and fewer professional staff members of the project available to assist parent support groups. Reductions were in all categories of state and federal funding and although the cities of Seaside and Pacific Grove increased their contributions considerably, the city of Carmel gave the project no increase.

Round . . . in the continuing battle between Paradise mall owner Paul Laub and the city of Carmel went to the city: the Board of Adjustments denied Laub's appeal of the building inspector's denial of a permit to have five walls in the Ocean Avenue shop reconstructed. Laub countered with a claim against the city for $2 million damages, citing the city's failure to construct parking facilities (the intended purpose for collection of in-lieu parking fees), its purchase of commercial property for park use and the ordinance that has inhibited his own plans: requirement for a minimum of 250 sq. ft. space for retail uses. City Attorney George Brehmer said he will recommend that the city deny Laub's claim.

A study of flood control alternatives for the lower Carmel River suggested that development of the eastern 134 acres of the Odello Ranch might be impossible without major flood control measures on Carmel

NEW YEAR'S

1981: The year in review

River, unless the land were raised by three or four feet of landfill.

The Carmel Highlands Fire District raised $32,000 to compensate for its failure to approve user fees in a June election. This amount was roughly equivalent to what the user fees would have generated in a year.

The Carmel City Council passed second reading of its revised transient rental ordinance to comply with a court order; however, other legal challenges to the controversial ordinance were seen as waiting in the wings.

Police Chief Bill Ellis announced his plans for retirement in December after 30 years' service. Also retiring from police service — but not so well-liked and respected — was the department's fleet of cruisers, described by Ellis as "pretty troublesome." The police department took delivery of four new patrol cars.

A state mediator was called in to help resolve an impasse in contract negotiations between the Carmel Unified School and the Association of Carmel Teachers.

The newly appointed General Plan Advisory Committee held its first meeting. The initial meeting was with representatives of Earth Metrics, a Burlingame consulting firm under contract to update the city's plan.

The Carmel Sanitary District argued its case for consolidation with the Pebble Beach Sanitary District in a lengthy position paper that stressed the advantages of a reduction in costs. The Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission scheduled a public hearing on the same issue.

OCTOBER

The Carmel Planning Commission reacted strongly to a report indicating that there may not be enough water left to supply the future needs of the city. The report, issued by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, indicated that water use in Carmel had skyrocketed to 93.5 percent of the city's allocation. Commissioner John Logan, a hydrologist, called on the planning commission to encourage water conservation and made a number of proposals for consideration by the commission's Planning and Conservation Committee.

School district news:
Faced with declining enrollments and reduced revenues, the Carmel Unified School District board was considering the possible closure of one or more elementary schools for next year. Proposals to close both Woods and Carmelo Schools brought strong protests.

The School Resource Officer Program fell victim to budgetary restrictions; Sheriff's Deputy Ray George, who served at Carmel High School three years, was reassigned to patrol duty.

The board sought an appraisal of the value of three parcels it owns in Carmel Valley, looking toward possible sale as a means of beefing up its sagging fiscal resources.

Landscape architect Gordon Andrews presented new plans for development of The Piccadilly park, estimating that improvement of the site would cost less than $50,000. He abandoned plans to include a privately-owned slice of land adjacent to the city property.

The Monterey County Housing Authority awarded a $2 million contract for remodeling Rippling River, the Carmel Valley home for the handicapped. The plan, designed to turn around losses, was also intended to emphasize the facility's service to low-income people who are unable to provide for their own care. However, residents questioned these stated goals and criticized changes made by the housing authority when it took over in 1980.

Water use and low-income housing were uppermost in the minds of the Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee as it tackled the job of bringing the city's general plan into conformity with state law. A series of eight public meetings is planned.

With the rainy season just around the corner, county flood control engineer Bob Smith declared 10 reaches of the Carmel River in "imminent emergency" status. The designation would speed the permit process for property owners who want to perform bank protection or channel modification work.

To have, or not to have a new dam on the upper Carmel Valley River was the big issue as eight applicants for positions on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management Board vied in a hotly-contested race.

The City Council acted on challenges to recently enacted moratoriums: upholding denial of a building permit for Paul Laub's Paradise mall, while denial of a use permit for a restaurant to replace Dolores Pharmacy was returned to the Board of Adjustments for further study. A one-year moratorium requiring city design review of residential construction within areas recently annexed was an administrative position. She replaced Sgt. Cecil Potter, who retired.

approved; however, it stopped short of imposing city building height limits in areas now under county building standards.

Subsequently, the City Council acted on its own to kill the hopes of Kati and Alan Lewis for the proposed new restaurant. On a split vote, the Lewis' application was denied, in spite of a last-ditch attempt for consideration of the plan as an "urgency" situation.

NOVEMBER

Carmel school administrators adopted a go-slow approach to implementing the controversial decision to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo schools next fall. Supt. Bill Rand said he would wait at least 30 days before taking any action. Both incumbent Doyle Clayton and newly-elected board member Joan Cathey had supported the closures.

Results of the 1980-81 California Assessment Program showed that except for a few soft spots, state achievement test scores for the Carmel Unified School District are above average and continue to show improvement. The one area of significant weakness was spelling, particularly at the sixth grade level.

More than 300 local and out-of-town guests gathered to honor Police Chief Bill Ellis at a retirement dinner replete with plaques and awards from a number of agencies and organizations. Meanwhile, behind the scenes, questions arose as to reasons for the delay in action toward either promoting Ellis' next-in-command, Capt. Bob Fischer, to the post or conducting a recruiting campaign. City Administrator Doug Peterson indicated that he would recruit outside the city.

Carmel Valley Ranch won county approval for construction of the next increment of 91 housing units, in spite of legal opposition advanced by opponents.

A Monterey County Superior Court judge issued an alternative writ of mandate to force the Board of Supervisors to prepare an environmental impact report on the proposed Robinson Canyon-Carmel Valley Road intersection project before it proceeds. The petition filed by attorneys Alexander Henson and Richard Rosenthal also sought to order the board to find the intersection project consistent with the county's General Plan.

The Carmel City Council declined to give its General Plan Advisory Committee political "teeth" with which to attack crucial planning issues. This was the council's answer to the committee's frustration in not being able to go "on the record" with regard to the General Plan revision.

Subsequently, city officials unleashed a spate of criticism in the direction of Earth Metrics, the consulting firm hired to update the General Plan. Thrust of the criticism, leveled at a joint meeting of the firm with council members, planning commissioners and a citizens' advisory committee, was that the firm had failed to comprehend that special "something" about Carmel and to communicate adequately. The result: a new committee, formed of two council members, two planning commissioners, two city staffers and Earth Metrics, to see if the contract can be revised . . . or must be dissolved.

DECEMBER

The Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees planned to "protest vigorously" a consultant's recommendation that the county Board of Supervisors drastically cut county subsidies in fiscal 1982-83. The proposed new formula would chop a whopping $140,000 from the current funding level of $160,000, necessitating fewer book purchases, shorter hours and a smaller staff, according to librarian Peg Richter.

The city Forestry Commission said it was fed up with talk and study of Carmel beach erosion and wanted to do something to remedy the situation. The commission was united in wanting to retain responsibility for the beach. Meeting with the mayor, city administrator and public works superintendent, the commission decided to apply an immediate "band-aid" to the beach erosion problem and perform major surgery later. They City Council then voted to reinforce three cypress trees on Scenic Road now and to study three long-range suggestions for control of bank erosion. The goal? A comprehensive beach management program before winter, 1982.

ALTHOUGH the Carmel High School Padres entered their 1981 football season with high hopes and a new coach, the home team emerged winless at the end of the season for the second straight year. The players were not discouraged, however, and looked forward to the 1982 season.

The final draft of the court-ordered EIR for the Carmel Valley Master Plan urged "trigger mechanisms" to halt the development when adverse environmental effects reach certain levels. Public hearings on the final CV Master Plan EIR were scheduled for early in January. Ground water quality was seen as another piece of the Master Plan puzzle.

The drive to have Capt. Bob Fischer named police chief picked up momentum as supporters collected signatures to present to the City Council. Discussion following presentation of the signatures suggested that selection of a new police chief might prove to be a crucial test of the strength of the city administrator form of government.

A special meeting of the General Plan Steering Committee proved to be mainly a forum for the group's frustrations. Another broad discussion of general plan issues was said to be different, however, in that there was evidence of a "let's get down to business" attitude. The issues? Traffic, parking and the character of the business and residential districts.

Removal of City Councilman Howard Brunn from the General Plan Steering Committee while he was out of town was assailed by Mayor Laiolo as well as Brunn. The mayor's words and tone were even more vehement than the councilman's.

City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio reported that rumors of the demise of the urban forest in Carmel were greatly exaggerated: in fact, the forest has grown 13 percent in 10 years. During the same period, the number of "poor vigor" trees decreased from 17 percent to 3 percent.

Trustees of the Carmel Unified School District gave a clear indication of their desire ward to the 1982 season.

The board urged district administrators to tighten up essential course requirements at both the middle and high school levels with a view toward strengthened graduation requirements.

The board chose Harold Santee, a former school superintendent, to fill the position vacated by Ron Parravano.

Members of the media and state officials were given a special preview tour of the new Soberanes Point Trail. Inside the recently-acquired Garrapata State Park, the 1.2-mile trail offers the only public beach access south of Point Lobos and north of Molera State Park. It will be open to the public Jan. 15.

Big Sur LCP before supervisors Jan. 4

MONTEREY COUNTY supervisors should get an earful of comments on the revised Big Sur Local Coastal Program in a special public hearing Monday, Jan. 4 at the county courthouse in Salinas.

Some specific concerns voiced by Big Sur residents centered on increased "federalization" of Big Sur, limits on visitor-serving units, and a proposed transfer of development credits policy.

The latter policy is to be presented and discussed separately and at length at the Jan. 26 Board of Supervisors meeting, although supervisors are scheduled to act on the bulk of the document Jan. 4.

The revised LCP is the result of efforts by a committee composed of county and regional and state Coastal Commission representatives to comply with conditions attached to the Sept. 3 approval of the LCP.

Once adopted by the Board of Supervisors, the revised LCP is to be submitted to the Coastal Commission for rehearing and certification, after which it will become part of the county general plan.

Roger Newell, chairman of the Big Sur Citizens Advisory Committee which helped draft the original LCP approved by the planning commission, said he is concerned the document might create more pressure for development.

"The policy for allowing the conversion of residential into visitor-serving units needs to be meshed with some kind of policy that ties density into total acreage for visitor-serving units," Newell said.

"We don't know how many people will opt for conversion of residential into visitor-serving units, but any cap would imply less than the maximum number of potential visitor-serving units. That means somebody will be left out and there will be a rush for those conversions.

"That could mean more rapid, rather than slow, development on the coast."

Because of the possibility of increased pressure for development, there is "more room for error" in approval of conversions and a chance that non-resident builders would be "imported," which could affect the economic structure of the Big Sur community, Newell said.

Newell, who has expressed concern on several occasions about the exclusion of the public from negotiations over the Big Sur LCP, said there is still suspicion about the process of revision.

"There is still some distrust because of the exclusiveness of the negotiations and the disjointed presentation of the document," Newell said. "Instead of an advocacy role, there's more of an adversary role."

THE FACT that the transfer of development credit policy is to be considered separately for action Jan. 26 also concerns Newell.

"The transfer of development credit program affects this whole question of density," he said. "But we're kind of left hanging. I don't know the wisdom of approving part of a document when one of its major parts isn't available."

James Josoff, chairman of the Friends of the Big Sur Coast, said his group will press Jan. 4 for some specific language against increased federal control over Big Sur.

"I'm discouraged they didn't put in the exact wording we wanted to insure there would be no increased federalization of Big Sur," Josoff said. "We want language to the effect that if any federal funds are necessary to implement the LCP, we shall not increase federal land ownership, management or control."

Josoff said his organization would like assurances that if any funds are used from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund to implement the LCP, they come from the state share of that fund.

There seems to be a misapprehension about the source of traffic congestion in Big Sur, Josoff said. The real source of the typical summer traffic jams is Highway 1 at Rio Road in Carmel, not Big Sur, he added.

"I'm concerned that the supervisors have been misled as to where the problem is," Josoff said. "It's Rio Road where the pileup begins. I'm concerned that we don't end up with gates and just a certain number of cars."

Josoff said he is bewildered by the transfer of development credit policy, which would permit the conversion of density credits greater than one unit per 40 acres into "land divisions, additional residences on the same parcel, or visitor-serving units."

"I don't understand the transfer of development credit system," he said. "I think we need to have a session to explain it to people. It could create all sorts of problems because all land is not equal. If you were determined to build on a certain lot with an ocean view, you might not be satisfied with another parcel."

The revised LCP states that one unit of density increase will be allocated to each parcel based on increments of 40 acres. For example, an 80-acre parcel would be allocated a "base density" of one residence and one density credit.

Specifics of how density credits might be transferred are not mentioned in the LCP. The only language which pertains to that mechanism says:

"The county shall adopt the details of a program permitting conversion of density credits into land divisions, additional residences on the same parcel, or visitor-serving units. Such a program shall specify the number of credits needed to generate each such land division, additional residence or visitor-serving unit."

"The county will develop and specify any rules that may limit the convertibility of credits to one or more such uses. Such rules may be based on parcel size, location, the cumulative number of units of each use approved, or any other applicable factors."

The LCP directs the county to devise a formula to "maintain ceiling limits of 750 new visitor-serving units and 100 new land divisions."

UPLAND property east of Highway 1 near Nepenthe and Ventana restaurants donated anonymously to the Big Sur Land Trust includes 158.5 acres of rolling land, some of which would be developable but which now will remain in open space.

Donations of natural open space add 200 acres to Big Sur Land Trust

By ROBERT MISKIMON

TWO-HUNDRED acres of natural open space land on the Big Sur coast has been added to the Big Sur Land Trust.

The non-profit, tax-exempt organization announced this week it has acquired four parcels of Big Sur land which brings to 4,275 acres valued at $2.4 million the total open space already under Trust ownership.

The four parcels recently acquired are:

- Twenty-four acres of forest and beachfront property donated by Big Sur architect Nathaniel Owings and his wife, Margaret.

- A 158.5-acre parcel east of Highway 1 near Nepenthe and Ventana restaurants donated anonymously.

- Nineteen acres above Wreck Beach donated by an anonymous Big Sur resident.

- Eleven acres along the Big Sur River donated by Glynn and Lorri Lockwood.

The Owings property was donated as a grant deed under which the Land Trust assumes all rights and responsibilities of ownership, including taxes and maintenance.

The other three properties were dedicated as conservation easements, under which the property owners retain ownership rights — including access — but dedicate all development rights to the Trust for open space preservation, Steen explained.

Land Trust executive director Brian Steen described the Owings property as "very steep" unimproved coastal property with redwoods and chaparral located just west of Highway 1. The property was dedicated for management as perpetual open space, Steen said.

"In donating this land, the Owingses wish to support the Land Trust's program and to establish that the private sector has the interest, and the energy to preserve Big Sur and its coastline," Steen said.

The Wreck Beach property is similar to the Owings property in its ruggedness, although it is not visible from Highway 1, as is the Owings property, Steen explained. It is steep oceanfront property with no public access.

The Lockwood property is forested land directly on the Big Sur River, just west of the Big Sur Inn, with no public access. And the anonymously-donated 158 acres is less steep than the other parcels, with some flat meadow areas that had development potential, Steen said.

Two residences located on the 158-acre parcel were excluded from the conservation easements. Under terms of the conservation easements, the Big Sur Land Trust will prohibit:

- Construction of structures or roads.
- Cutting of trees or vegetables.
- Commercial or industrial use.
- Extraction of minerals or hydrocarbons.
- Dumping or disposal or refuse.

"The appraised valuation of these restrictions qualifies as a charitable contribution for the donor," Steen said. "Additionally, each landowner made a substantial cash contribution to establish a management endowment for the property to be preserved."

Since its creation in 1978, the Big Sur Land Trust has completed 11 land transactions in which the appraised value of the properties or restrictions is $2.4 million, Steen indicated. The Trust has been named as beneficiary in wills in excess of $3 million.

The organization depends on tax-deductible donations from the public to operate and finance its programs. The Land Trust plans a general membership campaign in January, Steen said.

Lights out on Christmas Eve?

By FLORENCE MASON

"... THE NIGHT before Christmas" arrived early for a number of Carmel businesses and their last-minute shoppers when their electricity went out at 2:30 p.m. Christmas Eve.

While PG&E crews were at work on the subervice transformer at Dolores and Sixth, shoppers viewed wares in Carmel stores as best they could. As the minutes of the power outage became hours, a spirit of camaraderie developed: store owners and salespeople visited back and forth and shoppers caught the spirit of sharing the misadventure.

It was after 11 p.m. before power was restored to the four-block area. By that time, business people and shoppers alike had folded their tents and crept silently away — back to their homes and waiting families to celebrate Christmas.

***

On Monday morning, Dec. 28, before business was well underway, the power was out again for approximately one half hour. According to PG&E officials, the outage was needed to complete repairs on the transformer and return everything to normal.

Because of the length of time involved in the Christmas Eve outage, it is believed that the problem was in the transformer itself rather than the result of excessive power use.

***

That wasn't Santa Claus on the roof of the National Bank of Carmel at 6 a.m. Christmas morning! It was one of Carmel's finest, investigating an audible burglar alarm that was sounding forth. A thorough search of the area by several officers revealed no problems. The cause was determined to be a malfunction of the system.

In a single month (November, 1981, for example) the Carmel Police Department recorded as many as 92 malfunctions and 37 employee or owner errors causing burglar alarms to sound in the city.

THE CROSSROADS WILL BE A GREAT PLACE FOR GREAT RIBS

The first new restaurant to open at The Crossroads is still going to be Billy Quon's ("A Great Place for Great Ribs"). Disappointed that his original Dec. 26 date could not be met, genial Bill Lee bounced right back with a "for sure, we'll open officially Jan. 15."

Special lighting fixtures didn't arrive in time for the December opening, and other finishing touches were dependent on those. Still, it's a great way to start off the new year!

How does Bud Clark feel about progress at his ambitious project? "We feel fine about it. It's somewhat slow because of the economy, but we're very pleased with what we have done and the quality of the businesses coming here." Yes, he will be developing a second phase at the big complex on Rio Road east of Highway 1, but there isn't any definite date for that as yet.

ENCHANTED OAKS

There's a delightful business area off Seventh (between San Carlos and Dolores) that you might not know about if we didn't tell you. It is charming in Carmel's special way and the people are as friendly as you will find anywhere.

It begins, streetside, with Note'orious, the new card and stationery store we introduced to you in an earlier column.

Shopping there for the first time last week, I was impressed by the striking and unusual cards, wrapping paper, and other items.

I came out with some especially attractive tags for children's presents (birthdays as well as Christmas), complete with yarn ties that match the color of the tags. For customers of whatever political persuasion, there are also "jelly bean greetings." I enjoyed talking to John McCloud, the store's pleasant owner. He mentioned that he had just sent his wife, Mary, home. She has been putting in long hours at the shop, but now, expecting the couple's first child in January, home seemed to be the best place.

Walking past Note'orious into the lovely courtyard known as Enchanted Oaks, I visited with Jerold Whitney and C.D. Pinkerton in their antique shop at the back. The "enchanted" oaks are not just a reference point — they are there in profusion. The different building levels, with wooden stairs, are charming too.

We suggested featuring the delightful exterior of the shops. Inside, there are items best described, according to Whitney, as "curios." There are inkwells, paperweights, mirrors, lamps, bottles, pictures and children's toys, dolls and blocks.

"I relate best to American things, not European," Whitney said. He admitted to having been "a compulsive buyer" for many years. Pinkerton is a painter; he attended an art institute here years ago when it was located above the Carmel Bay Company. Visiting here frequently, both he and Whitney became more and more attached to the area and finally bought a home here. The next step was "love at first sight" when they saw Enchanted Oaks. They own the entire complex, which includes a studio apartment and another space used as both business and residence.

One of the things they particularly liked about Carmel, Whitney said, is "its ¾ scale." That applies also to their charming courtyard property.

DIAMONDS — AND OTHER GEMS — ARE HER BEST FRIENDS

Judith Grant started out with the idea of opening a restaurant. But her lifelong interest in gems evolved instead into a flourishing local business — or profession.

Ms. Grant moved to Carmel seven years ago from San Diego. That, too, "evolved." At first it was just weekends, but those got longer and longer and she finally said to herself: "This is ridiculous! I should move to Carmel." And so she did.

Before the idea of opening a restaurant could become a reality, Ms. Grant was extending her personal interest in gems to appraisal and identification work for her friends. From there, by word of mouth, she began to add local jewelers as clients. Again going with the tide of her interests, she attended the Gemological Institute of America school and lab in Santa Monica in 1978 and became a professional gemologist.

She had been a collector of gems for many years. It was the extraordinary increase in the appraised valuation of her own stones from year to year that led to further investigation and research. "I had to satisfy my personal curiosity as to why my own pieces were increasing so much in value; the yearly appraisals for insurance purposes were surprisingly different."

Ms. Grant had been a person of many interests. Yoga was one. She was involved in a chain of yoga studios and taught the discipline on television. She was also a law student, and a student of telecommunications. "I was a professional student," she said, laughing.

But gems took over, claiming more time and the intensification of sustained study. Finally, she opened her own lab on Cannery Row. Ms. Grant lives in Carmel and is still surprised that her personal interest evolved as it did — into an engrossing profession.

NEW CHIROPRACTOR IN TOWN

When Dr. Glenn Frieder makes changes, he doesn't stop with just one! Within the next month or so he will: strike out to establish his own chiropractic office, set up that office in Carmel, announce his engagement formally and move into a new home.

The young chiropractor seems to be taking all this in his stride. The moves come after 10 months in this area, during which time he shared offices on Carmel Rancho Blvd. with a long-time friend, Dr. Jeffrey Fountain.

After studying in Portland, Ore., Dr. Frieder accepted an invitation to join a holistic health team at a new hospital in Baja California. Although the hospital closed after a time, the experience was valuable. It was also special because in that area — at a yoga retreat where he was a guest speaker — he met his fiancée, Sonia Novick.

Dr. Frieder devoted two months to his search for a permanent location for home and office. The beauty of this area as well as his long-time friendship with Dr. Fountain led him to Carmel.

Establishing his own office (on the west side of Junipero between Fourth and Fifth) is something he has always wanted to do. The city of Carmel has a special feel to him, as well. "There is more of a sense of community here," he said, "it's more than a business atmosphere."

One of Dr. Frieder's techniques is a relatively new alternative to the manipulation about which some patients are apprehensive. "It is using an 'activator,' a non-force type of manipulation," he said.

Dr. Frieder, who is also a certified metabolic physician and a kinesiologist, will be living in Pacific Grove after his marriage. First, however, there is a trip to Mexico City for the holidays with his fiancée and her family, then the office move. He hopes to open by February 1 . . .

Dr. Frieder's application for a license at that location, where a dentist had been located, drew some questions by BLCRB members about the numbers of health professionals in Carmel. Karen Love, the board's knowledgeable secretary, reported that there are eight M.D.s, one of whom is a psychiatrist, six dentists and one veterinarian.

THE AMAZING SEA OTTER

There is a very special book available now in local stores and at the Carmel library. It is The Amazing Sea Otter, by Victor Schaffer. Even if you are already well-educated on the subject, reading it will not only entertain but enlighten you.

Schaffer, a Washington state resident, has woven a story about the life of a newborn sea otter off our own Monterey Peninsula so skillfully that fact and fiction become a lovely tapestry.

There are some delightful drawings by Gretchen Daiber; we wished there had been more.

WE'RE NOT THE UGLIEST!

Neither of Carmel's candidates for the title of Ugliest Bartender won a major award, but perhaps that's just as well. Except for the first-place winner's trip to Hawaii, would it have been a dubious honor?

Both Jack Sevier of the Red Lion and Tom Hughes of Toots Lagoon each received an honorable mention, if you can call it that: Sevier in the "getting ugly" class and Hughes in the "awfully ugly." All the fun and games were for a good cause — the contest raised more than $16,000 for multiple sclerosis. The 150 bartenders who participated, and their guests, celebrated at an awards party at the Hunt Club in Monterey.

Better luck next year, fellows!

AN APPEAL TO HEAVEN

Earlier this month, the plea from outside Paul Laub's Paradise mall (Ocean at Dolores) was "An Appeal to Heaven"! That was the motto on the latest in the Laub flag collection to fly in front of his shops.

The white flag, with a green pine tree in the center, was the sixth in a series of so-called Pine Tree flags used especially by the New England colonies. It was America's first naval ensign, suggested by Washington's military secretary in 1775. Originally, it was used for six so-called cruisers so they might recognize one another. It presided over the first major America naval military victory of that "pathetic little fleet" when the colonies won a battle against the British frigate "Nancy."

Later — in April, 1776 — the flag became the emblem for the provincial navy of Massachusetts.

HONORED AND NOTED

HONORED: Pat Parish of Herma Smith Curtis real estate for the highest volume of listings by a member of the Carmel Board of Realtors in 1981; Wendy Lazer of Prestige Properties for the most properties sold.

These awards were announced at a gala holiday dinner dance for the local realtors last week. Among the other surprises was the appearance of Charles Dunn, son of new board president Emily Dunn and her husband. Even the Duns didn't know he was coming from Milwaukee for the occasion!

NOTED: There are those who think Carmel has lost some of its small town friendliness; but all is NOT lost.

I stopped at Carmel Hardware to make a purchase the day after thieves had smashed the store's front window and made off with a number of knives. It seemed as though every person passing by stopped for a moment or two and said to owner Bud Housman — in one way or another — "I'm so sorry." That must have brightened his day . . .

Largest wreath in town? Could be the one that frames La Boheme's window at Dolores and Seventh. Beautiful, too.

THOUGHTS FOR THE WEEK BETWEEN CHRISTMAS AND THE NEW YEAR

Rev. Lawrence Farrell

Years ago when I was a young lad growing up in Monterey and working summers at Carmel Mission as a guide, everyone heard and told stories — both true and apocryphal — about the three Toms: Tom Work, Tom Field and Tom Doud. They owned all the Monterey Peninsula and a good portion of Monterey County. However, they would have made Ebenezer Scrooge look like St. Nicholas of Myra. As they grew richer they became more gloomy. When old Tom Doud was asked how his ranching was doing he would reply, "Dear me, dear me, there is a drought and there is not a blade of grass to feed my cattle." When it rained he moaned, "Dear me, dear me, the rain has washed out all my roads and the grass is so high I can't find my heifers for branding."

From my observation the three Toms are still alive, prospering and still grouching in Carmel. I cannot find a parking place, the streets are crowded, the shops, restaurants, hotels and motels are chock-a-block with customers spending money. Like Tom Doud.

"In draught and in rain
they forever complain!"

When they begin their litanies of sorrow and woe I turn off my hearing aid. If Carmel is so bad why don't they move to Chualar or Lord help us, Coalinga! The Bard of Avon says, "They protesteth too much." But just in case there is an iota of truth in their grumbings let me give them this word known as "Job's Comfort." "From the day we are born, till we ride in the hearse, things are never so bad they couldn't be worse." To your complaints I say, "Bah humbug."

Holidays swirl with fun

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

Doug Brown certainly celebrated his 85th birthday in style! His wife, Millie, decided to invite the same people who had attended Doug's 80th birthday. This year, the affair was held at the Beach and Tennis Club of Pebble Beach.

One delightful surprise of the evening was the letter Doug received from a dear friend from Back East called: What Getting Old Means. The letter was filled with terrific ideas and good humor.

Some 200 friends and relatives were on hand to surprise Doug, who spent much of the evening on the dance floor. Among those congratulating the birthday boy were Alex and Nona Heid, Dick and Betty Ghent, Fred and Pauline Stanley, Sydna and Norma Lee, Fred and Dee Farr, Dr. Jerry and Mary Martin, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Murtland and so so many, many others.

Now get set for the big 90 Doug!

CHRISTMAS DANCE A BIG SUCCESS

The first annual Therese Donath and Friends Christmas Dance, sponsored by the University For Man and held at the Monterey Armed Forces YMCA, was a big success. Charles Burke, executive director of the "Y," commented to Therese that the Christmas decorations for the dance had only been topped once — in 1944 when the decorating committee hung shimmering silver from the 40-foot ceilings.

Therese and her committee worked all afternoon transforming the dining tables into "Christmas presents" by covering them with colorful wrapping. Fresh holly also adorned each table and the soft candlelight enticed everyone to take to the dance floor for a bit of swing-and- sway to the music of Ace Hill and his group.

Those seen having a good time included Sherri Latone, Will and Phyllis Sherburne and Kathryn Pratt. Robert Griffin, president of the UFM board, helped with the festivities as did Monterey City Councilman Rich Hewitt, who formed part of the welcoming committee.

WRITERS' CLUB HOLD THIRD ANNUAL HOLIDAY PARTY

The lovely Carmel home of Dr. and Mrs. Jerry Gleason was the setting for the Monterey Peninsula Writers' Club third annual holiday gala.

The Gleason home was exquisitely decorated for the occasion, augmenting the decor which incorporates several of Kay Gleason's hand-stamped wall designs. If you would like to know more about this decorating technique, read Kay's new book published by Van Nostrand Reinhold. The book, Stamp It! tells you how to do your own patterns with erasers and sponge stamps, stamp-pad ink, and paint.

Conversation was rampant, as you might imagine in a group of writers which also included artists and other interesting folk.

Along with cocktails and roasting egg-sized chestnuts over an open fire, guests enjoyed such delicacies as spinach quiche, cheeses and pastries.

Participating in the festivities were Peg Mitchess, Barbara Bowman, Cheryl Hall, Lenny Levine, Jerry Motto, Walt Schmidt, Bernice Pires, Brien and Christine Gleason, Jackie and Roger Komula, Tom O'Connor, Shirley Koploy, Catherine Hatton and Margaret and Jim Anderson who recently returned home from a year's stay in France.

The Club was founded in the fall of 1979 by Annie L. Davis, a Peninsula writer. Meetings are held the first Thursday of each month at the First Presbyterian Church, 501 Eldorado, Monterey. The third Thursday of each month, the group conducts a workshop meeting in a member's home where critiques of members' works take place.

All writers from beginners to professionals are welcome to attend and become members. For further information call 624-5282.

Derek said that although it was very cold (snow on Mt. Fuji) they still did a lot of sightseeing including the department stores on the Ginza (Tokyo's Fifth Ave.) and were very impressed that the wares were equal or better than those in New York stores. One unusual happening was being in a shop on Thanksgiving and hearing the Christmas carol Silent Night being played in English!

Although prices in Japan are right out of this world, our travelers went first class all the way, thanks to the Japanese Kennel Club. They were also given a chauffeur-driven limo and an interpreter. Derek said that a cup of coffee cost $2 while cocktails run from $6-$8. At $20 per pound, we can just forget about hamburger.

The Raynes also took the bullet train to Kyoto, the ancient capitol of Japan which is noted for its old and very beautiful temples — and its cherry blossoms in the spring.

Derek, who has lived in Carmel for 40 years, first started judging dog shows in 1939. As a boy in England he went to dog shows with his grandfather and started showing his own dogs in 1936. He no longer shows his dogs, but he and Gerda do have two elderly Welsh Corgi champions. The Corgi, which looks much like a fox, is the favorite breed of Queen Elizabeth.

Derek has judged dog shows in such places as Australia, New Zealand, Argentina, Brazil and many times in his beloved England. When he judges in South Africa and Sweden next year, he will have judged on all five continents.

And, naturally they did a bit of shopping and came home with one excellent buy — a television set with clock and radio — all for the price of only $200.

Happy holidays, Gerda and Derek!

GREG AND PAM HOST FRIENDS TO CHRISTMAS CHEER

The gold star for the best party of the week goes to Greg Cellitti and Pam Mason who invited friends to their home for a bit of holiday cheer last Saturday evening.

The twinkling Christmas tree and a crackling fire welcomed guests to the party which started early and continued late.

Greg owns Friar Tucks's restaurant so naturally the food was delicious. Guests munched on beef, turkey, finger sandwiches, caviar, homemade quiche and other good things while enjoying their favorite cocktail.

Greg's neighbor, Bill Wehde, dropped in for a bit of socializing before taking his turn babysitting the two little Wehdes, Kent and Kersten, so that wife, Mauri, could also enjoy the fun.

Others placing "white elephant" gifts under the Christmas tree to be opened later in the evening included Beth and Chris Spaulding, Syd Demarest, Lester Henderson, Diane and Richard Wilson, Bob and Jane McFarren, Joe and Sharon Sieve, Fred and Pauline Stanley, Bill and Mary Ijams, Bill and Jeanette Becker and Clyde and Jenviera Herr.

Later in the evening, Jerry and Wanda Rotharmel dropped by as did Dennis and Pat Hart, Barbara Laidman, Bruno Merz, Rosemary Kay, Ric and Joanne Carver, Clam Box owners David Eagle and Henry Phillips plus approximately 200 others.

Happy Holidays from Greg and Pam!

STANLEY CLAN GATHERS FOR HOLIDAY DINNER

Things were a bit lively on Christmas Eve at the Carmel home of Fred and Pauline Stanley when the clan gathered for a family dinner and opening of gifts.

Family members getting together included the Stanleys' son and daughter-in-law, Doug and Kris Chappell, and their five daughters — Sasha, Karen, Cassie, Leah and Kimberley — all from Spokane, Washington. The Chappells bedded down at the Lodge at Pebble Beach during their stay which included a Christmas Day dinner at the Carmel home of Kris's mom.

Chris Stanley, a student at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, joined the family fun. The time was especially nice for Chris as he also celebrated his 21st birthday on Christmas day.

Other family members joining the Stanleys on Christmas Eve included daughter, Kim Chappell of Santa Barbara; daughter, Robin Mathewson and her husband Robert, their baby daughter, Lauren, from Lake Tahoe; plus son Steve and daughter Sue, both of Carmel.

But wouldn't you know that poor Skee Stanley (captain of the Carmel Highlands Fire Department) was on duty that evening and missed out on all the fun. Skee's wife, Sienna, along with her sisters, spent the special evening at the Carmel Valley home of their mom, Janine Howland.

BLOOD CENTER HONORS VOLUNTEER DONOR RECRUITERS

A special luncheon to honor seven volunteers who help recruit donors for the year-round blood needs of Community Hospital was hosted by the blood center staff at the hospital on Thursday, Dec. 17.

Honored were: Mrs. Rudolph (Edith) Alt of Carmel Valley, Miss Hope Hasty of Carmel, Mrs. James A. (Eleanor) Miller of Pebble Beach, Mrs. Charles (Lucille) Schonne of Carmel, Mrs. Roger (Kathryn) Sherman of Carmel Valley, Mrs. Randall (Virginia) Ward of Pebble Beach and Mrs. Virginia Whittier of Carmel.

These volunteers work on a rotating basis, calling the blood center's donor pool to help make certain that the hospital has the correct kind of blood or blood components at the right time.

During the luncheon program, Blood Center Director David T. Borucki, M.D., told the volunteers about the center's plans for 1982. One is a move into the hospital's new Outpatient Pavilion building now under construction. Dr. Borucki reviewed the floor plans, which give the blood center more space and more privacy for donors.

Margot Dunham, MT (ASCP), blood center supervisor, reviewed 1981 operations and the volunteers also viewed a demonstration of the center's CS-300 Blood Cell Separator.

Special guests at the luncheon included Osman H. Hull, M.D., director of laboratories, and two members of the hospital auxiliary: Isabel Ale, community service chairman, and Juanita Rosser of the community service blood program.

Blood center staff members on hand along with Dr. Borucki and Ms. Dunham included Nancy Bell, Meg Butterfield, Jean Decker, all registered nurses and phlebotomists; Marian Doud, phlebotomist's assistant; Betty Eschen, center secretary; Sharon Meyer, MT (ASCP), technologist; and Linda Michaels, night secretary.

Ms. Dunham pointed out that the holiday season is an appropriate time to be thanking the volunteers because it is when hospital blood supplies run low and donors are particularly needed. Donors who give blood during the holidays have their names added to a "donor tree" standing at the blood center entrance.

WAH M. CHANG TO APPEAR IN WHO'S WHO IN CALIFORNIA

Congratulations to Carmel sculptor Wah M. Chang who has been selected to appear in the 13th edition of Who's Who in California. Wah is among approximately 5000 Californians of achievement listed in the 1981-1982 volume. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Art Association.

Wah and his wife, Glennella, retired to Carmel from a partnership in a special effects studio in Hollywood in 1970. He is currently working with bronze sculptures. His work is exhibited in various galleries around the country.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL AUXILIARY DECORATED 15 CHRISTMAS TREES

Members of the Community Hospital Auxiliary have been as busy as Santa's elves lately. Along with their other duties, members also decorated 15 Christmas trees throughout the hospital so that those who are not feeling exactly up to par over the holidays will still have Christmas with lots of cheer.

Each of the trees has its own theme including the Children's Tree, the Teddy Bear Tree in the reception area, the Mexican Tree, a Family Tree, plus a popcorn and apple tree.

The project was directed by Helen Westland and Carol Todd.

Those wishing to view the trees may obtain a guide map at the reception desk.

NICOLE CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY WITH FORMAL WINTER BALL

Special events call for elegant affairs so it's not surprising that Nicole Duffel of Carmel recently celebrated her 30th birthday with a formal winter ball in the European tradition.

The affair was hosted by Nicole's parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. S. Hariri, at their lovely Carmel Highlands home.

Keeping in the spirit of the holidays and Nicole's birthday, the house was beautifully decorated. Fresh boughs of holly plucked from the grounds of the Hariri's estate accented the fireplace mantle and gold foil sparkle decorations hung from the rafters. The lighted Christmas tree, candles and a crackling fire made the entire room glisten.

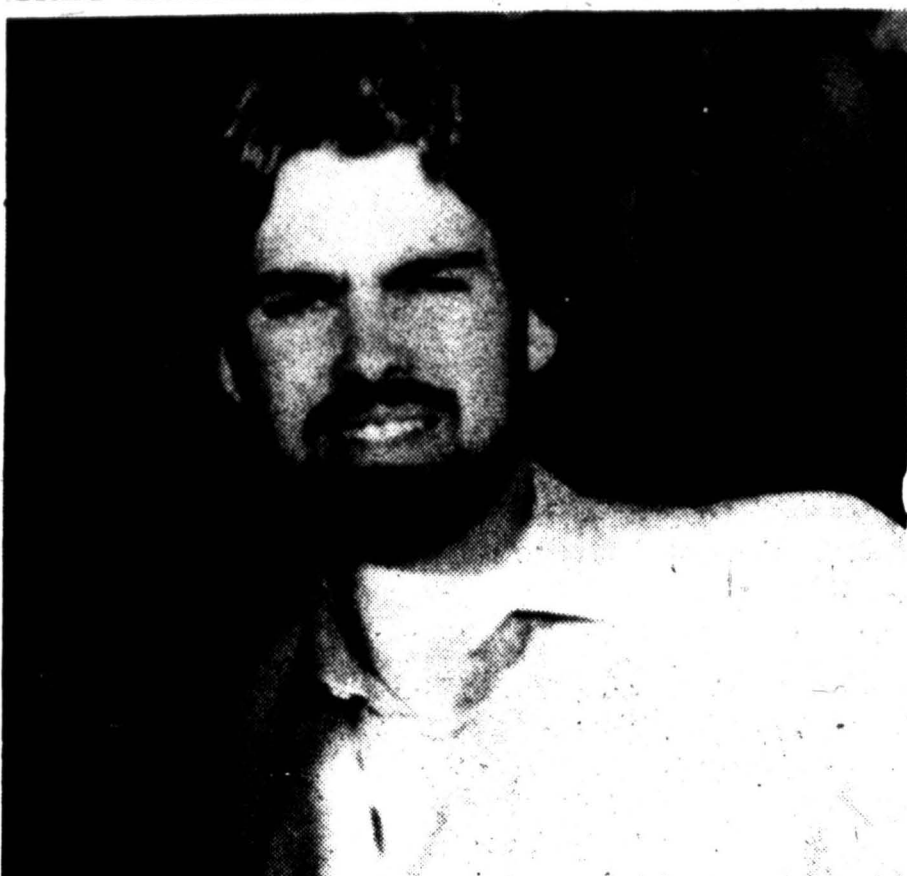

While enjoying cocktails, guest were treated to the piano artistry of Bob Phillips, who along with his jazz trio later entertained for dancing in the library.

Prior to the sit-down dinner of ham supreme with all the trimmings lovingly prepared by Nicole's husband, Gary, guests nibbled on delicious hors d'oeuvres such as salmon mousse, layered pate, vegetables with dips and numerous other good things.

Guests included Judge and Mrs. Richard Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ripsteen, Mr. and Mrs. William Yakobovich, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shepherd. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Byron Younger, Mr. Richar Jerow and Miss Less Leslie Byron.

GREG GIORDANO PASSES NEVADA BAR EXAMS

GREG GIORDANO

Congratulations to Greg Giordano who recently received the good news that he passed the Nevada bar exams.

Greg, a 1974 Carmel High School graduate attended Notre Dame and the University of Santa Clara Law School. He is now associated with the Glade Hall Law Firm in Reno.

He is the son of Al Giordano and the late Jacqueline Giordano of Carmel. He has two sisters — Barbara, a junior at San Diego State University, and Maria who attends the University of California, Davis. Greg's brother, Jim, is a graduate of San Diego State University and is a sales representative in Northern California. All four were home in Carmel for the holidays.

Greg plans to take the California bar exams in February and is looking forward to practicing in both California and Nevada.

DAVID T. BORUCKI, M.D., blood center director, shows the CS-3000 Blood Cell Separator to volunteer donor recruiter Eleanor Miller at the Community Hospital Blood Center luncheon. The machine "skims" platelets or white cells from blood as blood is being removed from the donor, circulated through the machine, and returned to the donor.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING AT FASHION SHOW FOR MEN ONLY

Thanks to Caroline Naslund, there no doubt were some very exciting gifts under local Christmas trees this season. Caroline, manager of Intimate Intrigue of Carmel, decided that a fashion show for "men only" would give local gents the opportunity to choose some things soft, silky and sexy for their special someones, so shortly before Christmas she held two private showings of elegant lingerie.

Champagne and hors d'oeuvres were completely forgotten as the gentlemen (and there was a security guard to see that they remained gentlemen) watched Vicki Maness and Barbara Kock-Conklin model everything from Teddys and Baby Dolls to soft, wooly robes. Brand names on the garments included Lily of France, Christian Dior, Four Seasons, Blanche, Iris, Cira, Collector's Item Silk, Lore, Sami, Eve Stillman and Ora Feder. Prices ranged from $20 to $250.

The room was so packed that there was very little room for Vicki and Barbara to do their turns, but the idea was well received.

Caroline was so delighted with the results of the shows she's considering making them regular events — and you can just bet there will be no lack of an audience.

Next week's column will cover the fabulous New Year's galas including Ansel and Virginia Adams' annual open house on New Year's Day. Share the fun by calling Terri Lee — 625-4431.

Pine Cone publisher taking it easy

Following the instructions of his physician, Pine Cone/Outlook publisher Al Eisner is spending most of his time relaxing at home following an injury to his eye Christmas Eve.

He suffered a slight tear in the retina of his right eye and underwent cryosurgery as an outpatient at Community Hospital, Thurs., Dec. 24.

Dr. Geoffrey White was guardedly optimistic that the surgical procedure he performed would be successful in preventing further damage. He prescribed lots of rest and no reading.

Eisner's wife, Judith, commented that he was "bored stiff with daytime TV" and anxious to return to work. She has been reading the material to be published in their newspapers to him. The Eisner children have also been taking turns reading the daily newspapers and other material aloud to their father.

Blood donors honored by Carmel Red Cross

Thirteen volunteer blood donors were awarded special certificates and plaques for having donated gallons of blood during the past 30 years. The awards were given at the Carmel Chapter's Red Cross Christmas bloodmobile Friday, Dec. 18. Out of a total of 85 who came, 19 were first-time donors.

Awards were given to Elfriede Monaghan, 10 gallons; Mae Eagleton, 5 gallons; Peter Farmer, 4 gallons; Joan Spear, William Love, 3 gallons each; Patricia Compton, Marlene Chavoya, Nick Zanides, Jerry Zach, 2 gallons each; and Gregory Cellitti, Annaliese Rawlings, Paul Sandman, Carol Klepich, 1 gallon each.

School collects food for needy

The Robert Louis Stevenson School Interact Club collected 3,142 cans of food to set a new record during its recent annual drive for the Salvation Army.

This year, the club collected 500 cans more than it did last year, according to Club President Robert Friscione.

The Senior Class achieved top honors for most cans contributed, due in part to a last minute effort by Class President Steven Zahm, the school reported.

The RLS Interact Club serves as a liaison between the school and community volunteer organizations to promote the work of charities on all levels.

The club assists the elderly and handicapped during the annual Crosby golf tournament. In past years, the club has raised funds for a hospital in Mexico and a playground project for a school in Turkey.

Next spring, the club will assist the community multiple sclerosis drive.

Training is completed

Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Stephen C. Warner, son of Edward F. Warner of Carmel and Elizabeth A. Warner of Carmel Valley Village, has completed recruitment training at the Coast Guard Training Center, in Alameda.

Included in his studies were first aid, seamanship, Coast Guard history and regulations, close order drill and damage control.

Warner joined the Coast Guard in September.

RED CROSS volunteer Elinor (Mrs. Barney) Laiolo chats with first-time donor Rick Minor following his donation at the Dec. 18 Bloodmobile at the Carmel Red Cross chapter house.

The Mayor's Report

Give thanks for democracy

By BARNEY LAIOLO

This being my last article for the year 1981, I can't help but be thankful for the wonderful country we live in when we consider the conditions existing in Poland and many other countries throughout the world. There are many who complain about how bad things are here, but I see or hear of few who leave our shores to live anywhere else. Several other people from various lands are trying to get to this great country.

It's true we all don't agree on many matters in our own country but at least we are blessed with freedom of speech, religion and movement. We can navigate about as we choose . . . not true in many other places.

As the year comes to a close, I think back on what accomplishments have occurred. We are on our way with regard to the General Plan; the terrace at Sunset Center is completed; four new police cars have been purchased; our new librarian, Peg Richter was hired; the preliminary plans for the parking facility at Sixth and Lincoln have been discussed and reviewed at many meetings; the city accepted the gift of approximately 5,000 square feet of land from Mr. Jack Patterson; the Rowntree Arboretum was completed by the Forestry Department along with all the other great work of that department.

The agreement was signed with the Carmel Unified School District for cooperative effort regarding the use of gym equipment; a new traffic committee was formed; the showers at Sunset were completed; an additional policeman was hired; the transient rental ordinance in the residential district was established; the Local Coastal Plan is in the hands of the State Coastal Commission for final approval; a moratorium was passed on commercial shops and timesharing; an ordinance lowering fence heights was passed; and the council meetings were changed to the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

May I take this opportunity to thank all the dedicated people who have served so diligently for so many hours on all the various committees and boards.

I wish all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Sincerely Smiling,
Mayor Barney

Hospital creates foundation

Trustees of the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula have approved the creation of the Community Hospital Foundation, which will serve as a parent company for the hospital and its related business activities.

The move is part of a legal restructuring designed to help the hospital meet changing conditions and minimize government underpayment for the care of Medicare and Medi-Cal patients, said Board Chairman Walter D. Scott.

Under the new plan, the Community Hospital Foundation will also serve as the parent company for separate corporations that will manage restricted endowment funds and control real estate assets.

Current hospital trustees will become trustees of the foundation and the same people will serve on the governing boards of the hospital, the endowment and the real estate corporations.

Current management staff will operate the foundation. No new administrative positions or additional costs are expected, Scott said.

An individual membership in the Community Hospital Foundation is available for a $5 donation. A life membership is available for a $1,000 donation.

Michael Kelly to represent Carmel High

Michael Kelly has been nominated to represent Carmel High School in the Hugh O'Brian Foundation Leadership Seminar for Outstanding High School Sophomores.

Runners-up in the school's leadership competition are Alison Murray and Paul MacDonald.

Kelly, son of Brian Kelly of Carmel, will participate in state competition in Palo Alto, April 2-4.

At that time, two outstanding sophomore leaders, one boy and one girl, will be chosen to represent California at the national convention in Chicago, Ill. Aug. 7-14.

Petpourri

Stocking a new fish tank

By JUDITH A. EISNER

Aquarium setups are increasingly popular Christmas gifts, and many people are just now beginning to assemble and stock their new fish tanks.

Tropical fish keeping is the most popular hobby in the United States. The care and nurture of tropical fish knows no age limitations and appeals to young and old alike. Frequently, a young boy will get his first aquarium and before he quite realizes what's happening, his father has joined him in his hobby and together they will add more tanks and fish and sophisticated equipment for years to come.

Tropical fish provide an interest, challenge and creative outlet for the elderly, who often are not up to the more rigorous demands of a larger, four-footed pet. For the retired, a tank or two of colorful, fascinating fish can be an endlessly interesting pursuit.

Tropical fish, although literally "tropical" and from warm water environments, are in most cases harder than you may imagine and far simpler to raise successfully today. Years ago, to succeed with tropical fish, you had to be able to create and maintain a naturally balanced aquarium. Essentially, this meant that you had to have the correct proportion of fish to live plants, for fish breathe the oxygen that growing plants give off. Today, modern aeration and filtration equipment pretty much take care of things for you. Naturally, you must control the water temperature, acidity-alkalinity and number of fish per gallon of water, but much of the guesswork is gone.

In buying or setting up your first aquarium, there are three things to remember. The first is that an aquarium of tropical fish is not a fish bowl! The second is that good equipment far outlasts cheap equipment, and the third is that rarely is a five-gallon "beginner's" tank a good starting size. We suggest a ten gallon tank as it's far less apt to get overcrowded too quickly.

The basic equipment you'll need to get started is a fish tank, heater and filtration-aeration system. This last item cleanses the tank water of wastes and excess food and also "bubbles in" fresh oxygen for the fish to breathe. A good pump and filtration setup should not only keep the water crystal clear but should provide years of trouble-free service.

A good quality stainless steel and glass tank is your best bet. You will also need a cover or hood to prevent fish from jumping out of the tank. When purchasing your pump and filter system, remember that the wide price range represents a wide range in quality. Generally, the most expensive pump is the best buy and will make up for its extra cost in money saved on repairs and lost fish.

Basically, there are two kinds of filtration systems. One filters by pumping dirty water through glass wool and charcoal; the second, "under gravel" type, sucks dirty water down through the gravel on the bottom of the tank and recirculates cleaned water up again. Discuss various setups with your tropical fish dealer. He knows best what system will work for you.

Years ago, live plants were an aquarium necessity. Today, while still available, they are usually rejected in favor of artificial plastic plants. The reason is simple: live plants require special care and feeding. Even when cared for, they do die and tend to foul the water. Also, the fish love to nibble at them — good for the fish but hard on the plants. One warning: buy your rocks and gravel at a tropical fish store. The beautiful stones you may find along the river or beach may contain minerals that can kill your fish.

Choosing fish for your new aquarium is exciting. There are literally thousands of varieties with new ones being developed regularly by breeders. Fish that were considered difficult to keep years ago can now be raised by amateurs thanks to modern aquarium equipment.

Fish are divided into two classes: live-bearers and egg-layers. The live-bearers, who give birth to live, fully developed young (called fry) are easier to raise and breed. You can practically breed guppies in your kitchen sink, so hardy are they! Mollys, platys and swordtails are other hardy live-bearers and good fish for the beginning hobbyist. Egg-layers such as angel fish, while not necessarily a problem to keep, require a professional to breed them successfully.

Decide if you want to specialize in one kind of fish or whether you prefer an integrated tank. Ask advice in selecting fish, as they vary in temperament and aggressive fish will often eat more timid ones. You can usually safely mix guppies, mollies, neons, cardinals, swordtails and platys, for example, plus the mild-mannered catfish and algae eaters (inelegant but useful scavengers). However, angel fish, barbs, loaches, tetras and gouramis are generally more aggressive and do not mix well with the former group. Of course, there are exceptions, and we have known positively docile tropical sharks and murderous mollies!

A little vigilance will soon tell you if all is peaceful in your aquarium and a hostile fish can usually be exchanged (if he is in good health) for a more peaceable variety.

Tropical fish not only make a fascinating hobby, but an attractively designed, well-lighted aquarium can be the focal point of an entire room. No doubt, you've seen elaborate tanks in waiting rooms or in the movies. The decor of a tank is limited only by your own originality, for the combinations of fish, plants and accessories is practically limitless.

Padre sports schedule

The Carmel High School Padres will visit Pirate Gym for a basketball tripleheader against Robert Louis Stevenson School Jan. 5.

Frosh action begins at 4 p.m. followed by JV play at 5:30 p.m. The varsity squad will tip-off at 7 p.m.

It will be the first action for the JV and varsity teams since the holiday break, but the freshmen have scheduled a Jan. 2, 10 a.m. contest, hosting Alisal.

The Padre girls also will host Alisal for a basketball doubleheader Jan. 2. JV action begins at 4:30 p.m. followed by varsity play at 7 p.m.

MTAL-MBL Supplemental Field Hockey play resumes for Carmel with the Padres traveling to York School Jan. 7 for a 3 p.m. match.

Parks permits on sale

Annual permits for boating and vehicle use at Monterey County parks are now available.

The $25 annual boating permits are valid at Lake San Antonio and Lake Nacimiento. Permits can be purchased at each lake gate or each ranger's headquarters.

Annual vehicle permits are available for $20 at each gate at Monterey County parks.

Permits also may be acquired through the mail for an additional $2 fee. To obtain information on mail-in permits, telephone 805-472-2311. There is an additional $2 fee for mail-in permits.

POW benefits increase

Former prisoners of war now living in the Carmel area can contact the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross, Eighth and Dolores Avenues, for information on increased benefits.

The recently-enacted "Former Prisoner of War Benefits Act of 1981" applies to all former POWs. The Act increases social services benefits and reduces the incarceration period for eligibility from six months to 30 days.

Sales tax revenues down

Sales and use tax revenues for Carmel were down by approximately $1,300 for December, according to data released by the California State Board of Equalization. The state allocated $113,714 to Carmel for its share of sales and use tax in December. This compares with $115,000 for last month.

However, quarterly allocations to Carmel, which include August, September and October, were up in 1981 to $287,320 compared with $274,117 allocated in the same period in 1980.

CITY TRUSTEES HOLD A BUSY SESSION

All the members of the Board were present at the monthly meeting of the Carmel City Trustees on Tuesday night.

Considerable amount of the time of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of a report, submitted by Trustees Taylor and de Sabla, concerning a proposition presented by T. B. Reardon for the erection of a municipal office building at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street. The plan under consideration contemplates the rental of a one-story building, properly petitioned into offices, to be leased for three years, at a monthly rental of $20.

DURHAM'S DOG LOST FOR FOUR DAYS

Eliot Durham is the happiest man in Carmel today. His wonder dog, "Bob," who was lost in Oakland last Saturday while Durham was visiting friends, was found Tuesday in Alameda. Durham, who has been frantic since the dog's disappearance, rushed to pick the east bay and returned with his dog Wednesday.

Bob, who is probably one of the best known dogs on the peninsula, was this year declared the winner of the 1931 Latham foundation and Oakland Tribune contest for the most heroic dog in the state. He was awarded a gold medal and praised for his heroism in saving his master on two various occasions.

VILLAGE CORNER HAS 10th BIRTHDAY

The Village Corner, Carmel has 10th Birthday and Village gathering place, located at Dolores and Sixth Avenue, this week is celebrating its tenth year of operation. Tomorrow the birthday will be commemorated with cups of coffee "on the house" to one and all.

Rollo Payne built The Village Corner a decade ago "as an informal Carmel club" as he expresses it today. A bulletin board was installed outside — an innovation mentioned in more than one national magazine story about Carmel. A bench also is an outdoor feature of The Village Corner so that patrons and passersby can rest and chat.

Comstock Associates designed The Corner while the late Hugh Comstock still was the head of that firm.

SUNSET CENTER RESTAURANT TO OPEN

The long-awaited restaurant facility at Sunset Center, which the cultural commission hopes will stimulate center traffic, may become a reality Monday.

Monday is Robert E. Bussinger's target date for the opening of his coffee shop, Esperanto.

Bussinger said there won't be any formal ceremonies — he will just open the door for business at 10:30 in the morning.

SUPERVISORS APPROVE ROBLEDO PLANS

An application to rezone eight acres of Rancho del Robledo from residential to open space use will be considered by the Monterey County Planning Commission next Wednesday.

Developer George Lockwood is asking that a broad pasture area be put into an open space or similar category for a permanent greenbelt.

On Tuesday, the supervisors approved Lockwood's subdivision plans, which call for placing 12 homes in addition to his own around the perimeter of the 37-acre estate in lower Robles del Rio.

STORMS BRING FOUR INCHES

The storms that hit Carmel last week and this weekend left 3.94 inches of rain, according to city forester Greg D'Ambrosio's estimate. At the Carmel Sanitary Plant at the valley mouth, district manager Max Drewien reported his rain gauge as reading about four and a half inches for the same period.

Although the rain was considerable, water rationing is still in effect and D'Ambrosio cautions that a month of dry weather could cancel much of the benefits of this New Year's rain.

CHAMBER CELEBRATES

One of the loveliest dinner parties of the season was that of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce held at the Carmel Valley Inn.

Arrangements for the affair were made by Linda Vance assisted by Roger Strange, Stella Moore, and Bill Browder.

Seventy-five members and guests were seated at tables beautifully decorated in holiday theme by Bob Reinken.

Jovial Jack George portrayed a "Super-Santa" in charge of the door prizes; while Al Gilmore led a community sing of Christmas carols.

Father Farrell's wisdom

'Real greatness'

Oct. 31 was Halloween, the eve of All Hollows or All Saints' Day when ordinary common-a-garden good men and women are honored for their holy and saintly lives.

Many people call themselves Christians but the real meaning of Christianity has missed them by a country mile.

The world honors and considers men successful and even happy when they are rich and powerful. However, real greatness should be measured by what a man gives, especially when he gives of himself generously. He must also be gentle, patient, searching for peace in his own home, his community and in the world.

He must be willing to give venturesome love which means he will be ready to get involved in a good cause, despite the risk.

Most people look upon "saints" as plaster statues or stained glass windows, remote and detached, whereas they are really ordinary people doing their job in life and doing it well. Saints are ready to stick out their necks for others. Saints are easy to live with and enjoyable to be around.

By the bye, how does your halo fit these days? Is your harp in tune and are you playing in the right orchestra? Amen.

You can view opera rehearsal

Hidden Valley Theater, which will present two grand operas in mid-January, offers a peek under the curtain from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 6.

During those hours the casts of Verdi's La Traviata and Rossini's La Cenerentola will be seen in open rehearsal by members of the Friends of Hidden Valley and their "friends."

To become "a friend of a friend" requires only an interest in opera and a $10 donation ($15 for couples.) That amount includes complimentary hors d'oeuvres, a no-host bar and commentary by Peter Meckel, founder of Hidden Valley Music Seminars. Those who presently belong to the Friends will be admitted without charge.

La Cenerentola will be sung by Gail Dubinbaum as Cinderella, Anne Buelteman as Clorinda and Velvali De Ayxa as Tisbe. Reginald Pittman will sing Don Romiro; Peter Halverson, Dandini; Robert Swedberg, Alidoro; and Reg Huston, Don Magnifico.

In La Traviata, Violetta will be sung by Cyndia Siedentop, Alfredo by Colenton Freeman and Germont by Duane Carter.

Directors include Joel Fried and Michael Ehrman, both of the New York City Opera, and John Pasqualetti of the American Conservatory Theater. Mitchell Krieger will conduct the rehearsal. Richard Seger, principal resident designer of the American Conservatory Theater, designed the set.

The formal openings of the operas will be Thursday, Jan. 14 for La Cenerentola, and Friday, Jan. 15 for La Traviata.

The spinning world of Ginger Essick

By Terri Lee Robbe

ALTHOUGH GINGER ESSICK is very much a modern-day woman, she looks like a true pioneer. She sat at her spinning wheel and continued to spin while talking about her work, her face void of makeup and her long hair pulled back.

"It's really very satisfying to make your own wearing apparel," said Ginger. "You look at a person wearing modern fabric and you realize that they're really wearing gasoline while you're wearing all natural fabrics. And even more important, these natural fabrics will wear for a lifetime and continue to look good."

Ginger, who spins her yarn from silk she gets from mainland China, has been spinning and weaving for the past five years. Although she considers herself a self-taught weaver, she first became interested in the art after attending a class. She became so involved in the work that she bought a shop, Soft Spectrum, in Pacific Grove.

"I kept the shop for over three years," said Ginger, adding that because there was so much paperwork she finally sold it to pursue her career as a fiber artist.

GINGER, who works at her Carmel home, said that the hardest part is learning to coordinate the eyes and feet.

"It does take time and concentration in the beginning," said Ginger, "but after a while it becomes automatic and you find yourself really mellowing out. Spinning and weaving can relax me faster than anything I know."

Ginger creates kimonos for men and women, shawls, belts, hats and coat sweaters. She also designs the sweaters which are knitted by her friend, Carol Flint of Carmel.

Many of Ginger's customers aren't aware that she dyes her own yarn. "The dying process is one of my biggest problems," said

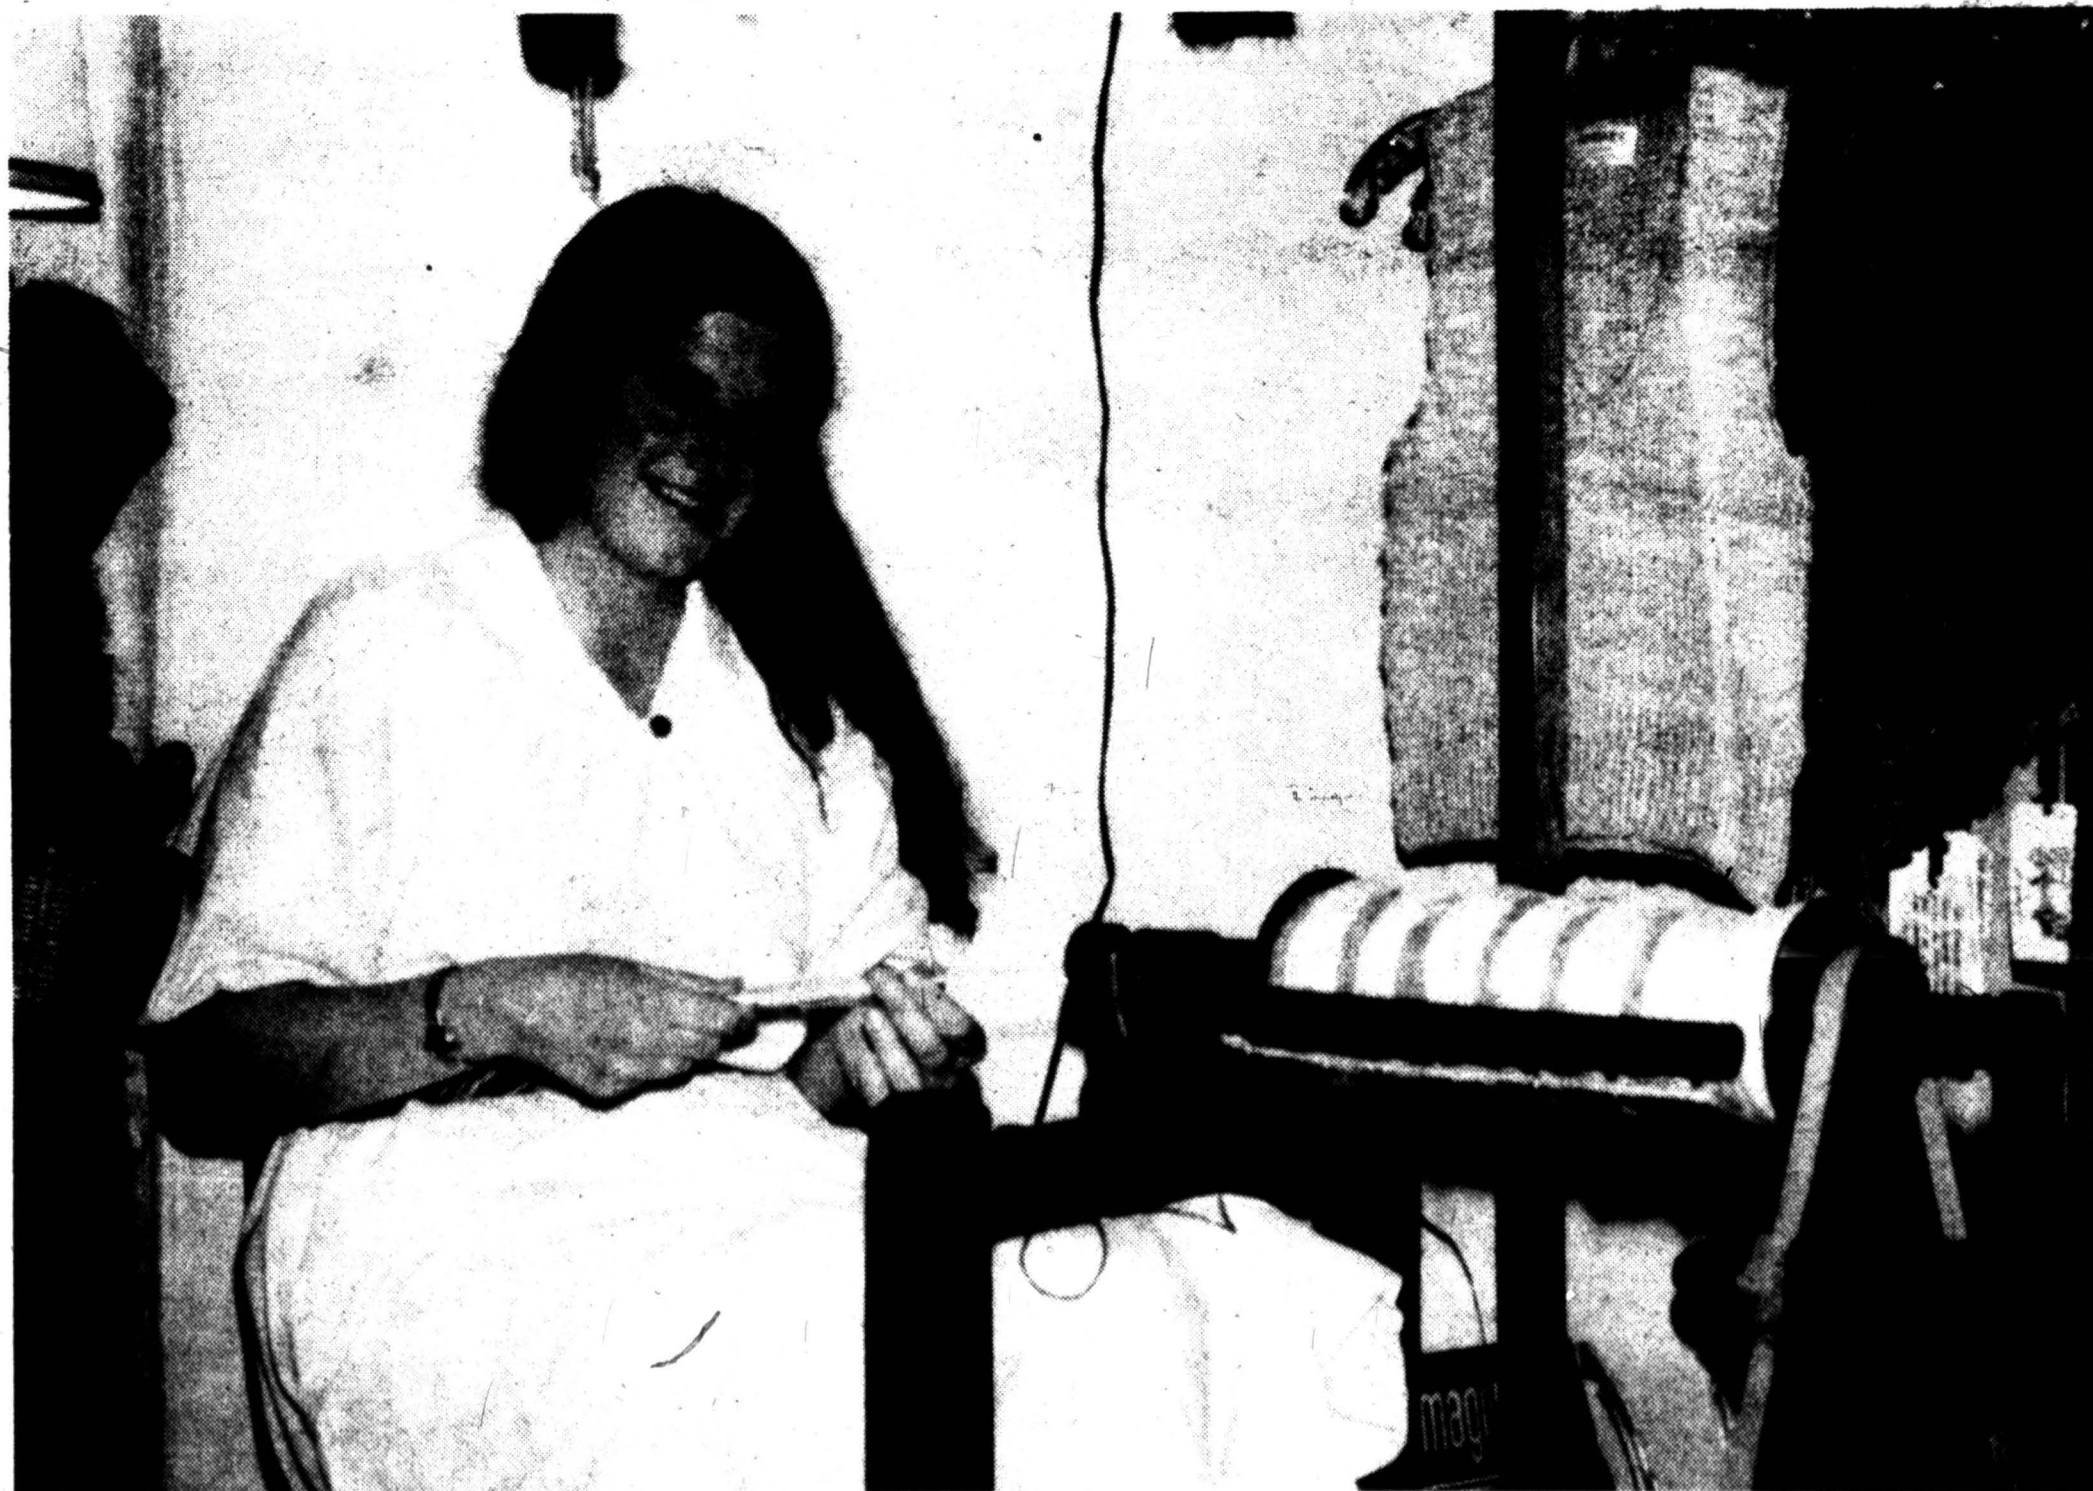

Ginger. "It's usually pretty damp in Carmel and it takes a week or more for the yarn to dry."

Ginger works with 33 different colors. Because the dyes are very toxic, the dye work must be done outdoors. "We wear special clothing and respirators for the work so we look like something right out of a space shuttle," she said. "Our colors are all very muted. We devised all of them from scratch."

Ginger explained that after the material sits in the dye pot for an hour or so it is then "set to twist." The skein of yarn is tied at top and bottom. The bottom of the skein is hooked to a large S-hook which is attached to a tin can filled with cement. The top of the skein is hooked to a pole. When the material is almost dry it is taken down. "Then," said Ginger, "the end result is a skein of yarn."

Ginger prefers to work with classic styles. She said that spinning and weaving has given her a new perspective on clothing. "I find

Balloon film takes viewers over the Alps

In 1958 Philip Walker quit his writer-director's job at NBC to look for a more exciting way of life. By 1961 he was carried across the majestic stillness of the Swiss Alps by a hydrogen-filled balloon.

His was the first balloon expedition to make that perilous journey. The story made the cover of the 75th anniversary edition of National Geographic.

Recently, having traveled six of the seven continents and most of the world's oceans, Walker returned to Switzerland to film Beautiful Switzerland, the first Explorama travel-adventure production of 1982.

The movie features footage of Walker's historic balloon flight, subsequent flights, plus a great deal more. He introduces you to the gnomes of Zurich, who proudly show off a ton of gold deposited deep in one of the sub-basements of their banks. Walker had to agree not to film the front of the bank while anyone was coming out, because customers' identities are secret.

There are visits to cities and scenic places all over Switzerland, including stops at the Hospice of the Great St. Bernard Pass, a wine festival that occurs only once every 25 years and of course, the Matterhorn.

Beautiful Switzerland will be presented three times at Sunset Theater in Carmel, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Jan. 7 and 8, and at 2:30 p.m. Friday. As is customary with Explorama productions, the film's producer, Philip Walker, will be there in person as narrator.

Tickets are $5.25 at the theater, or from Abinante Music Store in Monterey. For more information phone 372-5893.

Park to offer chances to see whale migration

Weekend whale-watching programs will be offered at Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park, 35 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1, beginning Jan. 9.

The whale-watching programs will be held each Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. Visitors should meet in the main parking lot and bring binoculars.

Julia Pfeiffer Burns is one of four state parks which offer whale-watching programs during the mammals' southward migration.

The migration route of the whales begins in the Bering Sea near Alaska in the summer. In December and January they migrate south along the North American Coast to the lagoons of Baja California where they mate and bear their young. In February, March and April, they return to the Bering Sea along the same route.

Spalding Pro-Am tourney continues this week

Participants in the 1982 Spalding Invitational swing into the second day of this truly gargantuan golf tournament today. First, there are nearly 450 competitors swinging on the turf of four different golf courses — Old Del Monte, Corral de Tierra, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach. On the final day, Sunday, Jan. 3, play will take place on a single course — Pebble Beach.

The Spalding is remarkable in other ways. Not only do pros and amateur players swing down the fairways together, but so do men and women. Although the field of 34 touring pros is small, they carry many honors, including 19 tour titles and 23 second-place finishes.

Playing with them are 78 club professionals and the U.S. Men's and Women's Amateur champions, Nathaniel Crosby and Juli Inkster.

Prominent men's pros include Bobby Clampett, Al Geiberger, Rod Funseth, Forrest Fezler, George Archer, Jay Haas, Danny Edwards, Craig Stadler, Andy North, Buddy Allin and Rod Curl.

The women's field includes Jane Blalock, Patty Sheehan, Donna Caponi, and Janet Coles. Jan Stephenson, with three wins during 1981, had to drop out at the last minute because of illness.

Tickets are $5 today; $8 for Friday, Jan. 1; and $10 for the final two days. A ticket purchased on any of the courses is good for admission on all of the courses. The tournament is a benefit for the Monterey Kiwanis Club. For more information phone 649-6828.

Film on nuclear war consequences to be shown at All Saints' Tues.

A film being circulated among several area religious institutions will be shown at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel; and at Congregation Beth Israel, Park Ave. and First St., Monterey this week and next.

The film is called The Last Epidemic: Medical Consequences of Thermonuclear War. It is usually accompanied by a petition calling for a California initiative for a bilateral nuclear weapons freeze between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

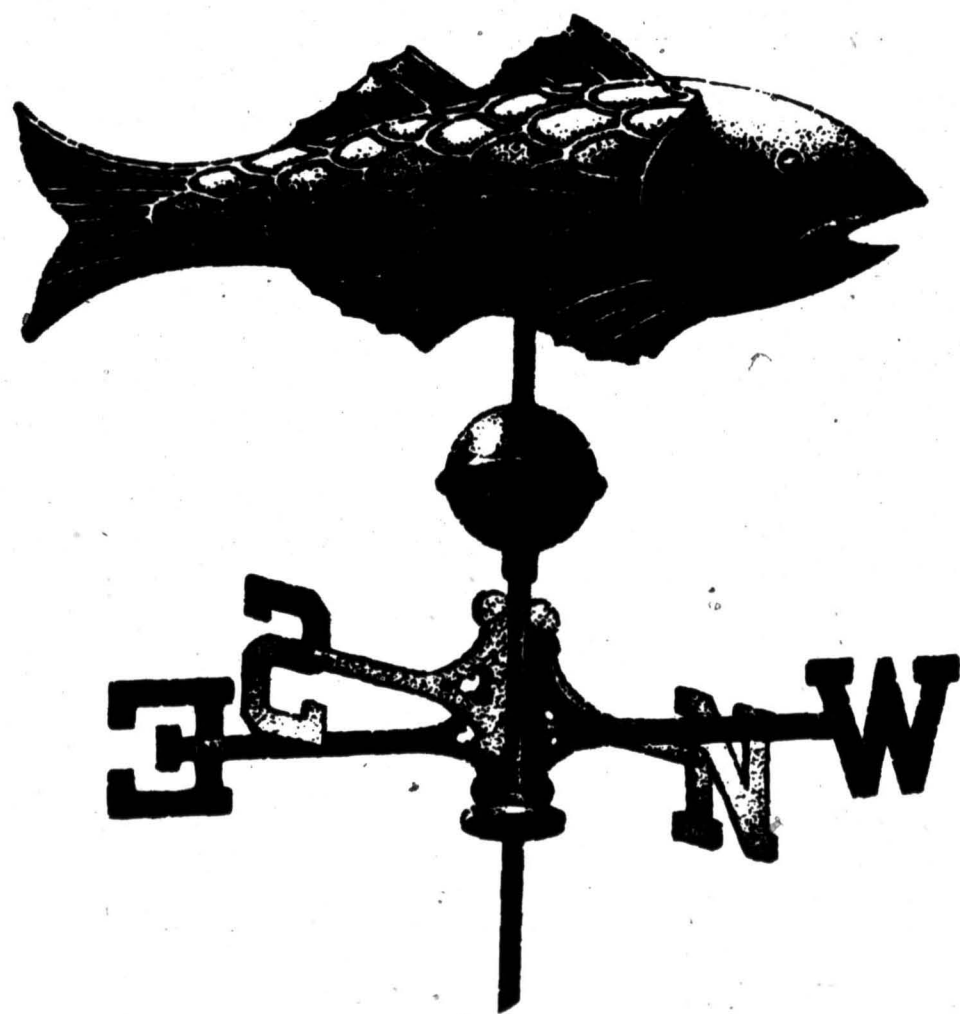

Even if passed, the initiative would have no legal power, but it is argued that it would have considerable moral power to halt the production of nuclear weapons in the two giant nations. On the other hand, it is also argued that the crowded California ballot is an inappropriate place for an international issue.

The film will be shown in the All Saints' Parish Hall at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5. It will be preceded by a soup supper at 6:30 and followed by the traditional burning of Christmas greens on the beach at the foot of 13th street in celebration of Twelfth Night. The public is invited to these free events. Donations are accepted.

At Congregation Beth Israel The Last Epidemic will be shown twice — once at a 12:30 p.m. Hadassah meeting and again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 12. Both presentations are free and public.

"Nation shall not lift up sword against nation," said Rabbi Mark Gross, quoting Isaiah. For information on the All Saints' meeting phone 624-3883. For information on the Congregation Beth Israel meetings phone 375-2759.

Pajaro bird count New Year's Day

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will be out bright and early New Year's Day to participate in one of the nation's most important bird counts.

The count, which lasts until dusk, be taken within a 15-mile-diameter circle of Pajaro, with birders assigned to patrol areas within the circle. Anyone interested in spotting plovers, kites, snipes, hawks and other winged creatures may join the watch for $1.50.

Each year birdwatchers across the nation conduct Christmastime bird counts. Last year the Pajaro count placed fourth nationally, identifying 193 species out of the 700 species that inhabit North America.

At dusk the birders will gather in the recreation hall at Pajaro Dunes to compare notes and share a free lasagna supper. For information phone John Warner at 1-722-5589.

What's playing at the movies

Absence of Malice: Paul Newman and Sally Field star in the story of a big-city newspaper. Newman is a warehouse owner whose family has underworld connections, and Field is the tenacious reporter who investigates his business. Melinda Dillon plays a school-teacher. Directed by Sydney Pollack. At the Carmel Village Theater.

Arthur: A comedy with Dudley Moore playing a happy millionaire drunk. Also with Liza Minnelli and John Gielgud. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Cinderella: The ageless fairy tale which Disney studios made into an animated film favorite returns to play at the Dream Theatre.

From Mao to Mozart: Isaac Stern in China: A first-rate documentary in which the violinist is shown on tour bringing music to China. Shows master classes with talented Chinese students with Stern as a brilliant, passionate, great teacher. The response of the students is very moving. At the Dream Theatre.

Ghost Story: The story of four men who committed a tragic error 50 years ago and who now, haunted and anxious, meet nightly to tell one another tales of horror. The elderly gents are Fred Astaire, Melvyn Douglas, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and John Houseman. Directed by John Irvin. Rated R. At the State Three Cinema.

The Great Muppet Caper: A new adventure for the cloth people. Directed by Jim Henson. Rated G. At the Dream Theatre.

The Great Santini: Robert Duvall plays a super-macho Marine Corps father who tries to shape his eldest son (Michael O'Keefe) into a ruthless man. Blythe Danner plays his patient and intelligent wife. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Modern Problems: Chevy Chase stars in the wish-fulfillment comedy of a common man who uses his uncommon powers to strike back at the people who are driving him crazy. Co-stars Patti D'Arbanville, Mary Kay Place, Brian Doyle-Murray. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre.

Neighbors: John Belushi turns up again, this time as a peaceful suburban homeowner suddenly faced with the arrival of some obstreperous new neighbors, played by Dan Aykroyd and Cathy Moriarty. Lauren-Marie Taylor has the role of Belushi's daughter. Filmed on location on Staten Island. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Pennies from Heaven: Concerns the efforts of a song-sheet salesman trying to make the lyrics of his new wares become reality. The place is Chicago, the year 1934 — a hard year and place. This is a highly stylized musical with a score containing dozens of the popular songs of the day. Stars Bernadette Peters, Steve Martin, Jessica Harper, and Christopher Walken. Rated R. At the Golden Bough.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darts, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Reds: Produced, directed by and starring Warren Beatty, who plays John Reed, the rabble-rousing American reporter. Diane Keaton stars as Louise Bryant, advocate of free love. Encompasses the events of World War I and the Russian Revolution. With Maureen Stapleton, Jack Nicholson, Paul Sorvino, Jerzy Kosinski and Oleg Kerensky. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet.

Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theatre.

Rollover: An international thriller about intrigue in the world of high finance, starring Jane Fonda as a glamorous ex-film star seeking to control her late husband's empire — and solve his murder. Kris Kristofferson is a financial troubleshooter who joins forces with her to further both their ambitions. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Sharkey's Machine: The latest Burt Reynolds movie. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre.

Taps: Timothy Hutton and George C. Scott co-star in the powerful contemporary drama of a group of young cadets who defend the military academy that is their home when outside authorities threaten to shut it down. Rated PG. At the Center Cinema.

Free films to cover revolution, Cold War

The Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific in Monterey, presents Fallacies of Hope at 2 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 7. The 52-minute movie concerns the effects The French Revolution and its aftermath of terror had on the artists and philosophers of the time. Cross currents of hope and despair were reflected in the music of Beethoven, the paintings of Goya and the sculpture of Rodin.

Beethoven, in addition, had a change of heart about Napoleon, first proclaiming the little general a hero and later denouncing him as a scoundrel.

A second, shorter film called Post-War Era deals with Hollywood's reaction to the Cold War, from fluffy Doris Day comedies to mature themes of crime, prejudice, mental illness, alcoholism, drugs and cynicism.

The films are free. For more information phone 646-3930.

Film review:

'Buddy' is a dud

By LISA JENSEN

Walter Matthau is a funny guy. More than once, his lovable mashed potato mug and world-weary demeanor have salvaged some otherwise mindless comic trifle. And Jack Lemmon, though overrated as America's beleaguered Everyman, has had his moments in such films as Mr. Roberts and The Odd Couple.

The writing-directing team of Billy Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond has produced some randy farces, including Some Like It Hot and The Apartment. Their third film starring Lemmon and Matthau (appearing on screen together for the fourth time), Buddy Buddy ought to be good for at least a couple of good yuks.

Unfortunately, Buddy bucks the odds. This misfired comedy is DOA from the first frame, and neither Matthau's expert slow-burning timing, Lemmon's comic kvetching nor the film's use of "real time" (the story takes place in a single afternoon) can save it.

Buddy Buddy isn't pathetic like Jerry Lewis' Hardly Working. It's simply a dim-witted idea supported by some not-very-funny jokes. Based on a story by Francis Veber (the French writer responsible for all those slapstick vehicles for "tall blond man" Pierre Richard), the plot revolves around a Mafia hit man (Matthau) who takes a hotel room across the street from the Riverside County Courthouse in order to assassinate a star witness when he arrives to testify against the mob.

Meanwhile, a frazzled TV censor from L.A. (Lemmon) takes the room next door. He's there to patch things up with his wife, who's run off with a sex therapy guru to his Riverside clinic. When she refuses to see him, Lemmon makes the first in a series of messy and inept suicide attempts.

The rest of the story concerns Matthau's elaborate efforts to keep Lemmon from killing himself (and attracting attention) until the assassin can complete his assignment and make his getaway.

This premise is hardly what you'd call hilarious in the first place. The marginal jokes that follow consist mainly of Matthau's stoic exasperations and a puritanical Lemmon recoiling every time someone mentions what he calls "the 'F' word" or "the 'P' word." A lot of the gags, like the piped-in sitar music in the sex clinic and the spaced out hippie couple who name their newborn "Elvis Jr.," seem about 15 years out of date.

As Lemmon's wife, Paula Prentiss is at her most neurotic and unappealing. There is one pleasant comic jolt — brilliant German actor Klaus Kinski (who played Aguirre and Woyzeck for Werner Herzog) dressed up as an aging black boy in pink aviator shades and jogging togs to play the sex doctor. However, that bright spot fades as soon as we hear the embarrassing sex jokes he's given to deliver. Overall, Buddy Buddy has virtually nothing to recommend it. If you want real laughs, go see Rollover.

STATE FLOWER IS 'SLEEPY'

The Spanish name for the California poppy, the state flower, is dormidera, "the drowsy one," because the petals fold in "sleep" at evening.

Exhibit to show nature captured in corduroy

Inspirations from Nature's Captured Moments — Plus Some, is the title of a rug exhibit by Patti Kreider that will be at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, Carmel from Monday, Jan. 4 through Jan. 28.

The "captured moments" are photographs by Monterey Peninsula photographer Niels Ibsen, moments that Kreider then wove into rugs.

"The captured moments have allowed me to take liberties with the rug technique and to play with color blendings I might never have tried," Kreider says.

Her weaving technique is called "double corduroy," a multi-harness shag rug method perfected by English weaver Peter Collingwood.

Kreider was born and reared in Berkeley, and has lived on the Monterey Peninsula since 1977. She has taught crafts at various recreation facilities, and won first place in rug weaving at the 1981 Monterey County Fair.

The Marjorie Evans Gallery is open each weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on nights of major theater performances. There is no admission charge. For details phone 624-3996.

WEAVER PATTI KREIDER takes captured moments from photographs and transforms them into colorful rugs of double corduroy, an English weaving technique.

Spinning is 'good for the soul,' says weaver Ginger Essick myself looking at garments and realizing how long it would take to make the same item if I were to make it from scratch," she said.

After spinning and dyeing the material, Ginger then puts it on one of her two looms and weaves it into fabric. If the item is to be a shawl she simply adds a fringe to the edges. But if she is making a specific garment, she weaves strips of material and then sews them together to fashion the sweater, hat or whatever.

The prices for the various items which Ginger creates ranges from $70 to $450. Most expensive are the jacket sweaters. The Phoenix Store in Big Sur sells Ginger's work, but they are mostly sold by "mouth to mouth" advertising.

To her knowledge, Ginger is the only person on the west coast who creates silk hand-spun apparel. The work is very time-consuming; making one garment can take as long as 30 hours.

Ginger is frequently asked by various businesses and organization to demonstrate her talents. Along with her sister-in-law, Amy Essick, she also teaches at Soft Spectrum as well as at her home.

"More and more women are showing an interest in spinning and weaving," said Ginger. "Many of them are tired of watching the 'soaps.' They're bored and looking for a creative hobby. It's one way of owning really good clothing at a very reasonable price."

Want to spin the wool for your own sweater or coat? The wool can be purchased for about $4 per pound. A sweater only takes about one and one half pounds of wool. She said that one source of good wool comes from Mrs. Ann Blinks of Jacks Peak who is considered one of the foremost sheep breeders in the area.

Ginger also spins camel down, cashmere and llama hair.

HOW DOES SHE do her designing? Ginger said the ideas come "off the top of my head." Since sweaters and shawls are the best sellers, she passes her sketch along to the knitter, who then has free rein.

Ginger hopes to get more involved with design of yarns, especially those that have more boucles — a very bumpy yarn. "I just want to play around with size and texture in hopes of coming up with more unique ideas," she said. Ginger's husband, "Hop," is an estimator at Granite Construction in Seaside. She said he isn't involved in her work, but is very supportive.

She walks the beach every morning at 7:30 a.m., and then treats herself to a good run in the afternoon. Her companions on these outings are usually her two Dalmatians, Chance and Destiny. Ginger, who works part-time at I. Magnin in Carmel Plaza, also would like to get in a bit of daily aerobic exercises.

Ginger said of her work: "It's hypnotic. It's also good for the soul. You're working from scratch so there's a sense of pride in seeing or wearing the finished product."

Backgammon

How much courage?

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 6-5 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

The five is easy. You come out from Black's 2-point to his bar point. You have a choice of sixes.

You are certainly tempted to hit the blot on your 3-point. If Black doesn't immediately hit you back (and the odds are 25 to 11 that he won't), you can close your board with any two, any three, 1-1 and 6-1. You would certainly like your chances to win the game, and a gammon is not at all unlikely.

However, and it's a big however, if Black makes a return hit on your 3-point at his next roll, he is still very much in the game.

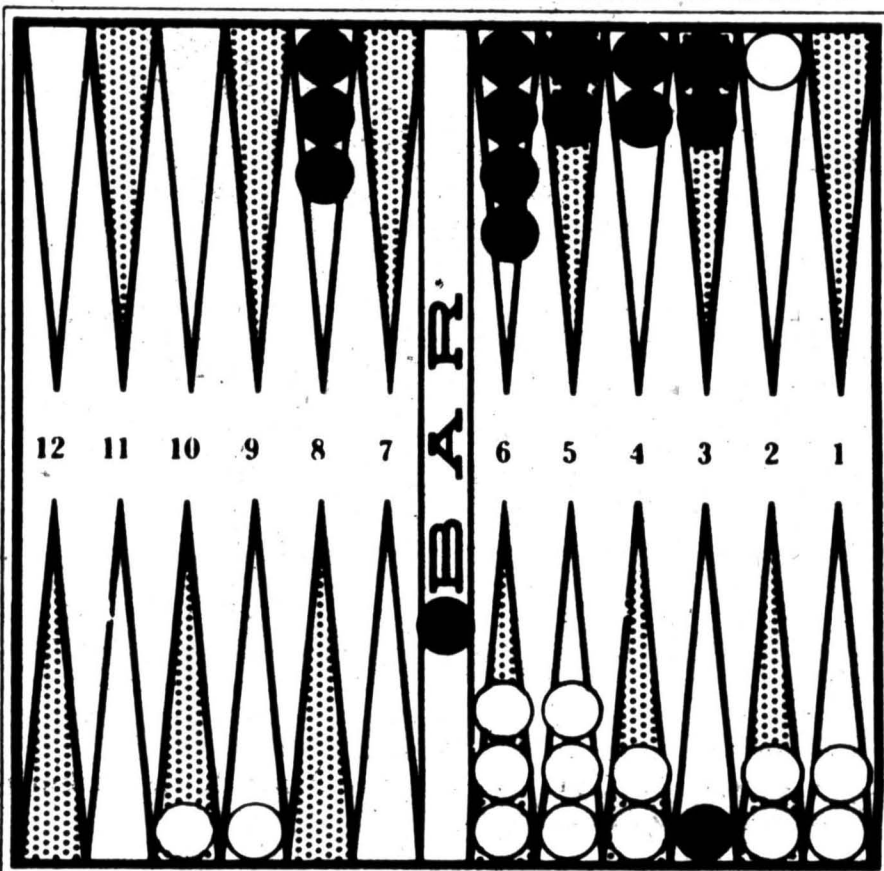

Probably the best move of all, combining attack and defense, is to take the six from your 10-point to your 4-point. If Black fails to come in, you will have builders on your 4-point, 5-point, 6-point and 9-point. Best of all, if Black comes in and has a lucky roll or two, you are still a big favorite to win the game.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

'Dear Abby' to address hospital groups

Abigail Van Buren, known to millions as "Dear Abby," will speak at a luncheon sponsored by the Community Hospital Auxiliary and Foundation at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Jan. 18 at the Serra Grand Ballroom of the Monterey Conference Center.

Children's story hours

A series of story hours for preschool children will be offered by the Carmel Valley branch of the Monterey County Library from Jan. 7 to Feb. 11.

The stories and reading readiness program will be presented by Sunny Church, the county's children's librarian, from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. each Thursday.

Early registration is advised because there is a limit of 20 children allowed in each class. To obtain more information, parents of children age three to five should stop by the Buckeye Building, 65 West Carmel Valley Road, or telephone 659-2377.

The luncheon, which costs $12, is open only to people who have contributed $5 or more to the hospital in the past.

Abby is probably the best-read columnist in the world, reaching 65 million daily readers of more than 1,000 newspapers. Because of her wit, wisdom and common-sense approach, she has revolutionized the advice business.

Reservations are requested by Jan. 12. For reservations and information phone 624-5311.

THE NAME BEHIND A WISE INVESTMENT

WHEN YOU SELL YOUR HOME, DISAGREEMENTS CAN ARISE.

That's one of the many reasons you need our professional services. Ask us, we know.

NEW LISTING, Clean 1-bedroom close to downtown, 2 baths. Add-on possibilities for $157,500.

NEW LISTING, Front row views of Carmel Beach and surf from this 3-bedroom, 2-bath house. Wonderful patios for indoor/outdoor living, and remodeling potential for $610,000.

NEW LISTING Pebble Beach family home on large lot. Warm & friendly, 3-bedroom, 2-bath, home, centrally located for convenience. $237,000.

OAKHURST, some few miles north of Yosemite, may be the ultimate getaway. Northeast of Oakhurst, in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains, where deer and mountain lions still play, is a 100-acre parcel with its own lake stocked with fish, an A-frame cabin, and owner financing at $395,000.

REAL PRIVACY is possible in this two-bedroom, two-bath home in Carmel Woods. On a 1/4 acre of grounds left natural for privacy and appropriately manicured for civilization, there is room for you. The master bedroom has its own sitting room, the kitchen has been so designed that it is fun to work in and easy to clean and the sun sets over the ocean view. $329,000, TERMS.

CARMEL LIVING requires a patio, and in this two-bedroom suite home there is easy access from every room to the outside rich in oaks & weathered bricks. Very private, very warm and richly decorated. Now $265,000.

IF YOU JUST bought a home and are wondering how to find a good tenant, call our Property Management Department at 624-2930. We offer complete long & short-term rental management.

TWO CONDOS DOWNTOWN

Both are 1 bedroom, 1 bath, and both are in the middle of downtown Carmel, both have fireplaces, but —

1. Just reduced to $195,000, with a view of the ocean & Point Lobos, with good financing.
2. Close to street level for easy walk, $197,000, with good leverage.

BIG SUR IS SPECIAL

Ask anyone who lives there. We present here four ways to move to Big Sur and its trees, d seclusion and privacy.

1. Near Pfeiffer Beach, a fixer-upper with ample water, a greenhouse, and a new price of $180,000. The owner invites offers.
2. 1.18 acres in Palo Colorado Canyon as a building site. Trees, the music of Rocky Creek, and the possibility of owner financing for $51,500.
3. A hand-crafted home near the Sur Coast. Large bedroom upstairs with redwood shower/sauna, copper sinks, redwood breakfast bar in the living room/dining room. Oak floors, wood heat, flexible financing. The ultimate in intimate, affordable seclusion at $149,500. Call main office or 667-2406.
4. NEW LISTING in Garrapata Canyon, live with the hobbits among tall redwoods along the creek. Excellent financing at an affordable price — $105,000. Call main office or 667-2406.

EXCITEMENT IS SOMETHING you seldom find in a home. Here it is. Marble entry, pine tree through the dining room roof, seven-pool waterfall, two bedroom suites upstairs and a separate studio apartment downstairs, and the owners will finance at $259,000.

WELCOME THE NEW YEAR

Start the New Year off in style — become a Carmel property owner at the beginning of 1982 and enjoy Carmel living for the entire year to come.

BUILD A HOME TO YOUR TASTE ON ONE OF THESE PROPERTIES:

$135,000. The only building lot now on the market south of Ocean and west of Torres and within easy and comfortable walking distance (3 blocks) to town. Owner finances.

$85,000. South Coast acreage. 39+ hillside view acres off Palo Colorado Canyon. Or try 2.7 acres on Highway One opposite the River Inn in Big Sur.

$175,000. Upper PEBBLE BEACH building lot on Los Altos Drive. Over ¼ acre. Owner financing.

$200,000. Carmel Views level building site of 1.2 acres. Valley vistas. Moments to shopping or Highway One.

$295,000. 2.77 acres of Carmel Valley Christmas Tree Farm and building site for the home of your dreams. One mile out the Valley Road. Property runs to the Carmel River. A money maker AND a beautiful homesite.

$400,000 to $650,000. These obviously are not inexpensive properties but they range in size from 2.56 acres to 3.78 acres. And they are on or adjacent to famed 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach. Near the Cypress Point Golf Clubhouse.

CARMEL BUSINESS INTERESTS?

We have two small businesses currently being offered. A Polish import shop located in the Carmel Plaza Mini-mall. Good one person operation. $10,000.

If you are a goldsmith, jeweler, or seller of small artifacts, we have a beautiful shop featuring wonderful handmade redwood cabinetry. Lease and fixtures for $22,500.

Happy New Year?

Many people, as we turn the corner into 1982, are looking at this new year with a dubious gaze. Apart from the fact that we're all about to be a year older, there are more reasons than usual for uncertainty.

But there are also reasons for confidence. Our special field is real estate — more specifically Carmel and Pebble Beach real estate — and we find solid footing for optimism about 1982. Here's why:

First, the charm of the Monterey Peninsula continues unabated. People from all parts of California, the East, Midwest and South still look to this as their retirement goal. Together they constitute a highly selective, unusually affluent market, one which has changed very little despite the declining national economy.

We live (and work) in a very special place, where supply is severely limited and demand is strong and steady. The people who want to come here are rounding out successful careers, they're eager to come, and able to do it. They are not subject to the vacillations of the mortgage market, because they often have ready cash. This has been proved to us again and again in 1981, and we expect it to continue.

Second, we see great promise in the $150 to $300 thousand market, where financing is vital to the purchase. Already we've seen a softening of interest rates and a reawakening of activity by mortgage lenders, and this trend will gather force. There is an enormous pent-up demand for homes in this category, backed up for a long time, only waiting for favorable financing to break loose. We think this power can be released in the coming year.

If you are a buyer, we see no reason for you to delay. These prices are supported by continuing demand, and the sooner you act the more you can participate in future growth. If you are a seller, there is every reason to believe this market will be strong and healthy. And if you are happy in status quo, more power to you. It's your satisfaction that keeps this special Eden so attractive!

Carmel
real estateA HAPPY NEW YEAR
IN THE HEART OF CARMEL

SURROUNDED by a secluded, landscaped garden, an adorable two-bedroom cottage on an oversized lot at the south edge of the village shopping district. It's within steps of marketing, movies and restaurants, and only four level blocks from the post-office. Inside, you'll find walls of board and batten, beamed ceilings in living room and one bedroom, fireplace, two modern bathrooms, and cheerful, efficient kitchen. New carpeting, new paint, new wiring, plus big storage basement and detached garage. A home of much charm, perfect for weekends, vacations, rental, or retirement. $289,500.

YOU BUSINESS SENSE

WILL TELL YOU . . . any way you look at the figures, this handsome three-bedroom home on Spindrift Road is an unbelievable value! It's located in a neighborhood of prestigious homes which sell from $415,000 to $595,000. Yet this one is on the market for a LOW, LOW $398,000 . . . and we can show you an independent appraisal estimating the value at $480,000. Superior financing, with a $250,000 first at 13%. This home is about three years old and was built by a designer with meticulous attention to fine craftsmanship. A superb investment.

THINK CROSBY!

WATCH THE ACTION at the Crosby from your living room overlooking the 13th fairway of Spyglass Hill Golf Club . . . and invite your friends who are among the gallery goers to stop by for some tournament cheer. Entertaining is a breeze in this handsome, contemporary three-bedroom home of 2500 square feet. A dramatic entrance foyer with skylighted atrium leads to the large living room with fireplace. Next to it, a good-sized dining room, then an ultra-modern big kitchen. A fine home — ideal for the golf enthusiast. $395,000.

COUNTRY TOUCH

VACATION FOREVER in sunny Carmel Valley on this one-acre property with 14 walnut trees and 2400 square-foot home close to the river. There are three bedrooms, two baths, living room with brick fireplace, dining room, modern kitchen, and big all-purpose room. $235,000.

This Year
Give Yourself
Carmel

...And...

Twisty streets bordered by tall pines, gnarled oaks and seabreeze-sculptured cypresses, also the jade-green curl of waves surging shoreward trailing manes of spray to break in snowy surf along a mile-long crescent of silvery sand on which you, and your dog, may walk in sunshine, or sunset glory, breathing pure, pure air.

...And...

Quaint shops tucked away in courtyards and offering tempting wares from all over the world, creations of local craftspeople as well as haute couture clothing.

...And...

Art galleries, programs presented at the cultural center by the music society, county symphony and Bach Festival, year-round drama by little theatre groups, summertime plays and Sunday afternoon free performances at the city's outdoor Forest Theater, and restaurants serving exotic foreign foods, fish captured in the blue, blue ocean beyond our beach and tasty American cookery.

...Also Give Yourself...

Over two centuries of California history centered about Carmel Mission Basilica where you may worship as you can, too, in the friendly churches of other denominations all with choirs that lead us when we sing joyous melodies at our community's Christmas celebration as Youth Center members serve us hot cider.

...And...

Fascinating neighbors who have lived interesting lives in many countries, also international service clubs and fraternal organizations, the Carmel Woman's Club and, especially Town House, a daily meeting place where older residents are welcomed for tea, holiday parties, programs such as travelogues, classes in art, needlework, literature and languages.

...And...

Picnics at Point Lobos Reserve with its spectacular coastline, hiking in cool canyons and on sunny hillsides in Carmel Valley's Garland Park, or both in three state parks along the scenically magnificent Big Sur Coast, also wilderness hunting and fishing in Los Padres National Forest, and a fireplace to come home to at day's end when soft sea mists steal silently inland.

...And...

Life enrichment courses ranging from outdoor sketching and creative writing through foreign languages and photography to business and physical fitness, all provided, for a small fee, by the Carmel Unified School District.

...Give Yourself, Too...

Golf on world-famed courses, and tennis, and sailing, and riding along forest trails or the wave-packed sand of Carmel Beach, and a library where you may browse through magazines by a fireplace, or consult a cordial staff ever happy to help you find the book you need for your research, or pleasure, and, if you are housebound, bring it to you.

...And...

A city government which jealously guards the enchanting village character of Carmel, provides neighbourly police protection and a fire department with trained personnel who also man the Red Cross ambulance prepared, with no cost for transportation, to take you or your loved ones to one of the most beautiful and efficiently staffed hospitals in the United States.

...But Above All...

Give yourself time to enjoy the good life in Carmel, and, as to where you will live, whether it be a holiday home or a year-round residence, a condominium or a cottage, we will be happy to help you, just come to our office, have a cup of coffee, tell us your requirements and see our handsome pot-bellied stove, dated 1899, which, to us, represents diligence, integrity and service.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FORWARD TO SECURITY TOMORROW, START SHELTERING INCOME TODAY.

The new Tax Shelter Retirement Plans can be confusing. But at Security Pacific Bank we were looking forward and planning ahead, so our people would be better equipped to help you set up a plan that's right for you.

We created detailed guides on our Individual Retirement Accounts and other retirement plans that help our people help you turn your tax dollars into retirement income.

There is no fee charged for any of these plans.

To find out more about these new investment opportunities, stop in at any of Security Pacific Bank's more than 600 offices and ask for our free information brochure on Tax Shelter Retirement Plans.

At the same time, Security Pacific Bank will give you a free Retirement Plan Guide to help you choose the plan that fits you. For example:

IRA

Individual Retirement Accounts

IRAs are now available to every wage earner under 70½ years of age. You can make a tax-deductible contribution of up to $2,000 a year, or 100% of earned income, whichever is less. Working couples may be able to deduct as much as $4,000 from gross income.

Security Pacific Bank's IRA plan offers you two investment options: a guaranteed fixed-rate 1½-Year Time Deposit, or a variable-rate 1½-Year Time Deposit. Each pays a high money-market rate, each allows you to defer the interest earned from your taxes until withdrawal.

Simplified Employee Pension Plans (SEP)

Other Security Pacific Tax Shelter Retirement Plans are just as forward looking. For instance, Simplified Employee Pension Plans (SEP).

Through a Simplified Employee Pension Plan, employers can contribute up to 15% of an employees' wage, or $15,000 whichever is less to their employees' IRA accounts.

Keogh Plans

Self-employed individuals and partnerships can establish Keogh Plans for themselves and their employees. Maximum annual contributions are the lesser of 15% of income or $15,000.

At Security Pacific Bank, Tax Shelter Retirement Plans can be started for as little as $100. We're looking forward to helping you shelter income today, so you can look forward to security tomorrow.
